Working with a partner, cut out the statements and terms opposite.

- Put the cards on a piece of paper and arrange them around a copy of the mind map below in a way that makes sense to you.
- Discuss the possible links between the terms. Those with many links can be kept close together, but do allow space between all the cards, because more cards may be added later.
- When you are happy with your arrangement, stick the cards to the paper.
- Draw lines between the terms that seems to be connected.
- Write on the lines a short explanation of the link. Use arrows to show which way the link goes. (Different links can go in both directions for any pair of terms and there can be more than one link in any direction. There does not have to be a link between all the terms.)
- On blank card(s) add any missing terms that you think are important, and add to the links.

Drawing by hand, or using an ICT program, develop the mind map shown above.

Create a similar mind map with the main heading VOLCANOES.
