Facilitating Challenging Groups Nina W. Brown, 2014-01-23 Groups like the people in them come in all forms and often they don't fit a standard mold. Single session, leaderless, and open groups are three of the most common kinds of nonstandard groups, but participants and facilitators of these kinds of groups have few, if any, resources at their disposal when they try to confront the unique challenges that their group structures present. Facilitating Challenging Groups confronts these challenges head on and offers activities, tools, tips, and techniques vital to everyone from the smallest self-help group to the largest human relations training session. Readers will come away from this book with a deep understanding of each group's unique needs, the leader's role where applicable, and concrete strategies for developing the two traits most important to any successful group: universality and hope. Teacher Collaboration for Professional Learning Cynthia A. Lassonde, Susan E. Israel, 2009-12-09 Teacher Collaboration for Professional Learning contains the essential information, tools, and examples teachers and school leaders need to create, manage, and sustain successful collaborative groups. Designed to be a hands-on resource, this practical guide shows you how to Advocate for collaborative teacher learning, Develop and sustain collaborative research groups, Organize and conduct productive research projects, Address issues of ethics, leadership, and group dynamics, Evaluate and sustain collaborative learning activities. Based on data from a major survey, Teacher Collaboration for Professional Learning features extensive case examples from model research communities collaborating within schools across districts, in partnership with universities, and as online networks. The book also offers a wealth of reproducible templates, as well as reflection questions and exercises, invaluable tools for organizing study groups. Loss, Hurt and Hope Sandra L. Bloom, Lorelei Atalie Vargas, 2009-03-26 What happens when a child experiences bereavement or trauma or both? When left untreated, childhood trauma crosses generational boundaries, developing risk factors that far outpace the threat of any other childhood disease, and yet most children who have lived through a significant traumatic experience usually do not get the care they need to begin their healing process. Children who have experienced trauma are often left grappling with devastating loss: loss of self-esteem, security, innocence, and trust, that is more challenging to diagnose and treat than the more concrete loss of family, a pet, or a home. Loss, Hurt and Hope: The Complex Issues of Bereavement and Trauma in Children gathers the collective wisdom of professionals who have spent years on the front lines working with children victimized by trauma. Each chapter illuminates how loss can shape a child's development and provides professionals with the tools necessary to help these children move from despair to hope and renewal. Experts in the field of child trauma explore the vulnerability of these children, effective methods of caring for them in a variety of treatment settings, and examine the impact of loss on organizations charged with caring for those who have experienced trauma. Loss, Hurt and Hope offers a multifaceted lens through which loss can be examined and appreciated, laying the groundwork for significant progress toward improving the understanding of the power of loss in our society. Group Identity Fabrication Theory Robin Kurilla, 2023-07-28 To date, there has been no comprehensive and coherent approach to determining the communicative and precommunicative processes involved in the construction of group identities The present study fills this gap by developing a unified theoretical foundation that can be used to capture empirical construction processes Moreover it contributes to the domain of group communication research It creates a basic theoretical riverbed that provides a conceptual foundation for the conception of inter and intra group communication which does not take its starting point from objective categories but from de facto socialization processes In addition the architecture of an innovative social theory is presented using the example of the construction of group identity which satisfies the demands of epistemological interests in communication studies and possibly also in other disciplines
