one of Allen's early articles 'Note Deafness' a description of what became known as amusia published in 1878 in the learned journal Mind. His first books dealt with scientific subjects and include Physiological Aesthetics 1877 and Flowers and Their Pedigrees 1886. He was first influenced by associationist psychology as expounded by Alexander Bain and by Herbert Spencer the latter often considered by whom the most important individual in the transition from associationist psychology to Darwinian functionalism. In Allen's many articles on flowers and on perception in insects Darwinian arguments replaced the old Spencerian terms leading to a radically new vision of plant life that influenced H.G. Wells and helped transform later botanical research. On a personal level a long friendship that started when Allen met Spencer on his return from Jamaica grew uneasy over the years. Allen wrote a critical and revealing biographical article on Spencer that was published after Spencer's death.

Grant Allen - The British Barbarians Grant Allen, 2017-02-10 Charles Grant Blairfindie Allen was born on February 24th 1848 at Alwington near Kingston Canada West now part of Ontario. Home schooled until 13 when his family moved to England. Grant was to become a highly regarded science writer who branched out to a fiction career and became enormously popular. His work helped propel several genres of fiction and whilst his career was short it was enormously productive. Grant's scientific background enabled him to root much of his work in a plausibility that was denied to others. He had little fear in challenging a society that treated women as second class citizens and creating best sellers from such works. On October 25th 1899 Grant Allen died at his home in Hindhead Haslemere Surrey England. He died just before finishing Hilda Wade. The novel's final episode which he dictated to his friend doctor and neighbour Sir Arthur Conan Doyle from his bed appeared under the appropriate title The Episode of the Dead Man Who Spoke in 1900.

The British Barbarians Grant Allen, 2021-05-18 In The British Barbarians Grant Allen presents a provocative exploration of the collision between civilization and primitivism in Victorian society. Set in the late 19th century the narrative follows a scientific expedition to an isolated island inhabited by a primitive tribe. Through a richly detailed satirical lens Allen deconstructs notions of British superiority while engaging with themes of evolution savagery and morality. His literary style is characterized by sharp wit and vivid descriptions which serve to illuminate the stark contrasts between the so called civilized British and their barbaric counterparts ultimately questioning the ethical implications behind imperialism and cultural superiority. Grant Allen a notable Canadian novelist and popular science writer was well versed in evolutionary theory and the intellectual currents of his time. His background in biology and his interest in sociocultural issues likely influenced his desire to critique Victorian social norms through this narrative. Allen was not just a novelist but a thinker commenting on the world around him and stimulating discussions on evolution and human behavior. The British Barbarians is a must read for those interested in postcolonial literature historical context and satirical commentary. Allen's incisive examination of societal norms and human nature invites readers to reflect on their beliefs about civilization and progress. Ideal for literary scholars and general readers alike this work resonates with contemporary debates on culture and identity.
