Wall Street and the Country Charles Arthur Conant, 1904 Love's Pilgrimage Upton Sinclair, 1911 Creating the College Man Daniel A. Clark, 2010-05-25

How did a college education become so vital to American notions of professional and personal advancement?

Reared on the ideal of the self made man American men had long rejected the need for college But in the early twentieth century this ideal began to change as white men born in the U S faced a barrage of new challenges among them a stultifying bureaucracy and growing competition in the workplace from an influx of immigrants and women At this point a college education appealed to young men as an attractive avenue to success in a dawning corporate age Accessible at first almost exclusively to middle class white males college funneled these aspiring elites toward a more comfortable and certain future in a revamped construction of the American dream In Creating the College Man Daniel A Clark argues that the dominant mass media of the era popular magazines such as Cosmopolitan and the Saturday Evening Post played an integral role in shaping the immediate and long term goals of this select group of men In editorials articles fiction and advertising magazines depicted the college man as simultaneously cultured and scientific genteel and athletic polished and tough Such depictions underscored the college experience in powerful and attractive ways that neatly united the incongruous strains of American manhood and linked a college education to corporate success

Food Security, Agricultural Policies and Economic Growth Niek Koning, 2017-04-21 Using a political economic approach supplemented with insights from human ecology this volume analyzes the long term dynamics of food security and economic growth The book begins by discussing the nature of preindustrial food crises and the changes that have occurred since the 19th century with the ascent of technical science and the fossil fuel revolution It explains how these changes improved living standards but that the realization of this improvement was usually dependent on government support for smallholder modernization The author sets out how the evolution of food security in different regions has been influenced by farm policy choices and how these choices were shaped by local societal characteristics international relations and changing configurations in metropolitan countries Separate chapters are devoted to the interaction of this evolution with debates on food security and economic growth and with international economic policies The final chapters highlight the new challenges for global food security that will arise as traditional sources of biomass production and the more easily extractable reserves of fossil biomass become depleted or can no longer be used Overall the book emphasizes the inadequacy of current explanations with regard to these challenges It explores what is needed to ensure a sustainable future and calls for a rethinking of these issues a necessary reflection in today's unstable global political situation
