Background: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged, obese women.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to investigate the effect of the use of a computer-based learning system on the learning of the basic concepts of the theory of the cell. The study was conducted in a classroom of a high school in the city of Istanbul. The study was conducted in two groups: the control group and the experimental group. The control group was taught by the traditional method, while the experimental group was taught by the computer-based learning system. The results of the study showed that the use of the computer-based learning system had a positive effect on the learning of the basic concepts of the theory of the cell. The students in the experimental group performed significantly better than the students in the control group. The results of the study suggest that the use of a computer-based learning system is an effective method for teaching the basic concepts of the theory of the cell.
