Some Way Home David Kenney, Barbara Kenney, 2014-10-01 Based on a true story Some Way Home is the account of the handling and healing of Dylan a prototypical foster child He comes into this world a fairly anonymous character and is soon sent wandering through the government's child protection agencies in search for a home He lacks a stable family to hold care or protect him so early on he is subjected to several significant traumas of abuse and abandonment He suffers but strives to survive emotionally until his mental health is challenged to the point of psychosis After Dylan's first short stay in foster care he and his brother move in with their Aunt Patti who wishes to adopt them There Dylan and Patti fall in love Unfortunately Patti is also living with her boyfriend Bruce who becomes the bad daddy Eventually after various episodes of brutality and loss Dylan is permanently removed from Patti and placed into the foster care systems again The narrative continues as Dylan's social worker Adam McDonnell tries to heal his hurt and place him into a safe environment However reality intervenes in the appearance of abnormal behaviors that surface when a child is isolated beaten and confronted by true rejection Distress and the will to survive generate the little boy's desire to earn some value in society Even after a complete deterioration in a disastrous second placement his third placement brings new hope when Dylan learns of love again But this positive period rapidly slips away with an increase in Dylan's impulsive and destructive behaviors that define him as a severe management problem A permanent placement an adoptive home is Dylan's only hope but opportunities look bleak due to the systemic inadequacies of agency work Let's Take the Long Way Home Gail Caldwell, 2011-08-09 NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLER They met over their dogs Gail Caldwell and Caroline Knapp author of Drinking A Love Story became best friends talking about everything from their love of books and their shared history of a struggle with alcohol to their relationships with men Walking the woods of New England and rowing on the Charles River these two private self-reliant women created an attachment more profound than either of them could ever have foreseen Then several years into this remarkable connection Knapp was diagnosed with cancer With her signature exquisite prose Caldwell mines the deepest levels of devotion and courage in this gorgeous memoir about treasuring a best friend and coming of age in midlife Let's Take the Long Way Home is a celebration of the profound transformations that come from intimate connection and it affirms once again why Gail Caldwell is recognized as one of our bravest and most honest literary voices Long Way Home Cameron Douglas, 2020-09-29 A gripping memoir Rolling Stone of one man's descent into the depths of addiction and self-destruction and his successful renewal of family ties that had become almost irreparably frayed On the surface Cameron Douglas had everything descended from Hollywood royalty son of Michael Douglas grandson of Kirk Douglas he was born into a life of wealth privilege and comfort But by the age of thirty he had become a drug addict a thief and after a DEA drug bust a convicted drug dealer sentenced to five years in prison with another five years added while he was incarcerated Through supreme willpower a belief in himself and a steely desire to alter his life's path Douglas began to reverse his trajectory to understand and deal with the psychological turmoil that tormented him for years and to prepare for what would be a profoundly challenging but successful reentry into society at large

Transformations of Trauma in Women's Writing Laura Alexander, 2023-01-10 This volume examines the ways in which trauma alters women's identities While some of the chapters look deeply at individual experiences many of the contributions look to national traumas and the consequences of political abuses including colonial subjugation and genocide for women The book shows that language has a transformative power to change us to give us a great capacity for inner and outer dialogues and for healing and self love As shown here women have historically employed autobiography and memoir to free themselves and others rather than seeing the limit of form they reinvent the parameters to offer a new relationship with language

Home and Nation in Anglophone Autobiographies of Africa Lena Englund, 2023-10-21 This book looks at contemporary autobiographical works by writers with African backgrounds in relation to the idea of place It examines eight authors works Helen Cooper's The House at Sugar Beach Sisonke Msimang's Always Another Country Leila Ahmed's A Border Passage Noo Saro Wiwa's Looking for Transwonderland Douglas Rogers's The Last Resort Elamin Abdelmehmoud's Son of Elsewhere Clemantine Wamariya and Elizabeth Weil's The Girl Who Smiled Beads and Aminatta Forna's autobiographical writing to argue that place is particularly central to personal narrative in texts whose authors have migrated multiple times Spanning Liberia Nigeria Sierra Leone Egypt Rwanda Zambia and Zimbabwe this book interrogates the label African writing which has been criticized for ignoring local contexts It demonstrates how in their works these writers seek to reconnect with a bygone Africa often after complex experiences of political upheavals and personal loss The chapters also provide in depth analyses of key concepts related to place and autobiography place and privilege place and trauma and the relationship between place and nation

The Form of Politics John Von Heyking, 2016-06-01 A study of Aristotle's and Plato's interpretations of friendship and their significance for political life The Routledge Introduction to American Life Writing Amy Monticello, Jason Tucker, 2023-07-31 The stories of lived experience offer powerful representations of a nation's complex and often fractured identity. Personal narratives have taken many forms in American literature. From the letters and journals of the famous and the lesser known to the memoirs of former slaves to hit true crime podcasts to lyric essays to the curated archives we keep on social media, life writing has been a tool of both the influential and the disenfranchised to spark cultural and political evolution to help define the larger identity of the nation and to claim a sense of belonging within it. Taken together, individual stories of real American lives weave a tapestry of history, humanity, and art while raising questions about the veracity of memory and the slippery nature of truth. This volume surveys the forms of life writing that have contributed to the richness of American literature and shaped American discourse. It examines life writing as a rhetorical tool for social change and explores how technological advancement has allowed ordinary Americans to chronicle and share their lives with others.

British Propaganda and the State in the First World War Gary S. Messinger, 1992 In 1914, advertising was much less sophisticated than it is today; radio was in its infancy; television was undeveloped; telephones were just coming into use; the gargantuan party rallies of Hitler or Mussolini were still in the future; and the idea of using communications media to control the thoughts of an entire population was new, relatively unexplored, and not of interest to governments to any great extent. Propaganda was a part of life before 1914, and the term was coming into increasingly widespread usage. But other institutions of society, such as the church, the press, business, political parties, and philanthropy, were the major producers, not government.

The Intellectual in Twentieth-Century Southern Literature Tara Powell, 2012-01-09 Never in its long history has the South provided an entirely comfortable home for the intellectual. In this thought-provoking contribution to the field of southern studies, Tara Powell considers the evolving ways that major post-World War II southern writers have portrayed intellectuals, from Flannery O'Connor's ironic view of interlockchuls to Gail Godwin's southerners striving to feel at home in the academic world. Although Walker Percy like his fellow Catholic writer O'Connor explicitly rejected the intellectual label for himself, he nonetheless introduced the modern novel of ideas to southern letters. Powell shows by placing sympathetic, non-caricatured intellectuals at the center of his influential works. North Carolinians Doris Betts and her student Tim McLaurin made their living teaching literature and creative writing in academia, and Betts's fiction often includes dislocated academics, while McLaurin's superb memoirs often funny frequently point up the limitations of the mind as opposed to the heart and the spirit. Examining works by Ernest Gaines, Alice Walker, and Randall Kenan, Powell traces the evolution of the black American literacy narrative from a stress on the post-Emancipation conviction which saw formal education as an essential means of resisting oppression to the growing suspicion in the post-civil rights era of literacy acts that may estrange educated blacks from the larger black community. Powell concludes with Godwin who embraces university life in her fiction as she explores what it means to be a southern female intellectual in the modern world a world in which all those markers inscribe isolation

When Cowboys Come Home Aaron George, 2023-11-10 When Cowboys Come Home Veterans Authenticity and Manhood in Post World War II America is a cultural and intellectual history of the 1950s that argues that World War II led to a breakdown of traditional markers of manhood and opened space for veterans to reimagine what masculinity could mean One particularly important strand of thought which influenced later anxieties over other direction and conformity argued that masculinity was not defined by traits like bravery stoicism and competitiveness but instead by authenticity shared camaraderie and emotional honesty To elucidate this challenge to traditional frontiersman masculinity Aaron George presents three intellectual biographies of important veterans who became writers after the war James Jones the writer of the monumentally important war novel From Here to Eternity Stewart Stern one of the most important screenwriters of the fifties and sixties including for Rebel without a Cause and Edward Field a bohemian poet who used poetry to explore his love for other men Through their lives George shows how wartime disabused men of the notion that war was inherently a brave or heroic enterprise and how the alienation they felt upon their return led them to value the authentic connections they made with other men during the war
