What is the definition of psychology?

The study of the mind and its function.

What is considered the birthdate of psychology, and why?

1879 is the year psychology is considered to be birthed because it was the year that William Wundt opened the first psychology laboratory.

What is critical thinking?

A way of thinking that uncovers hidden values, examines assumptions, weighs evidence, and assesses conclusions. Arguments are carefully considered rather than blindly accepted.

What is culture?

The continuing values, traditions, and behaviors shared by a group of people that is passed down from one generation to another.

To what does the nature-nurture debate refer?

What is hindsight bias?

The inclination to believe, after discovering the outcome, that we could have predicted it.

What is replication?

The act of repeating the process of a research study, often using different participants in different situations, to see whether the basic finding can be copied.

What is a case study and what are its limitations?

When one individual or group is studied in depth, in the hope to reveal things that are true of all of us. Case study limitations include not being able to generalize the results to the wider population, researcher's bias being present, and consuming too much time.

What are some of the limitations of the survey method of research?

Limitations of the survey method include the wording effects such as interpretation, people not answering truthfully, people failing to answer questions, and a lack of personalization.

What is naturalistic observation?

Observing and recording behavior in naturally occurring situations without controlling the situation.

What is a random sample?

A sample that fairly represents every member of the population with an equal chance of presence.

Know the following terms:

Double-blind procedure: A procedure when neither the participant nor the research staff know about who has received the treatment or placebo.

Placebo: An inactive substance or condition that is often given to the control group rather than the treatment.

Placebo effect: Results that were caused solely off of expectation.

Independent variable: The factor that is manipulated in an experiment.

Leading Learning Tom O'Donoghue,Simon Clarke,2009-10-16 The study of educational leadership makes little sense unless it is in relation to who the leaders are how they are leading what is being led and with what effect Based on the premise that learning is at the heart of leadership and that leaders themselves should be learners the Leadership for Learning series explores the connections between educational leadership policy curriculum human resources and accountability Each book in the series approaches its subject matter through a three fold structure of process themes and impact Series Editors Clive Dimmock Mark Brundrett and Les Bell The notion that school transformation is dependent on exceptional leaders is increasingly seen as unrealistic and unsustainable Instead the idea of distributed leadership which promotes the view that all stakeholders have complementary leadership roles to play in enhancing student learning is now being promoted as a more useful framework for understanding schools and how they might be changed Subscribing to the notion of distributed leadership O Donoghue and Clarke identify two key groups the leaders of learning and the leaders for learning The leaders of learning and the focus of this book are those working at the school level to improve the quality of learning in the classroom such as teachers principals pupils and involved members of the local school community The leaders for learning are the policy makers and administrators whose support is crucial The authors argue that in order to be effective leaders both groups require an understanding of Broad trends in contemporary leadership theory Recent views on learning theory The importance of teachers engaging continually in learning about their practice The significance of creating and sustaining schools as learning organisations Forging links between leadership and learning The book s examination of the shifting approaches to leading learning in contemporary schools is enriched by innovative examples drawn from a range of international contexts Leading Learning will appeal to students involved in masters and doctoral courses relevant to the field and those undertaking programmes of school leadership preparation and development It will also be of interest to academics working in the field of educational leadership and management Psychology Spencer A.
