Astrophysics in a Nutshell Hannes Alfvén, 1988 Elementary Particle Physics in a Nutshell Christopher G. Tully, 2011-10-10 An introduction to high energy physics that prepares students to understand the experimental frontier The new experiments underway at the Large Hadron Collider at CERN in Switzerland may significantly change our understanding of elementary particle physics and indeed the universe This textbook provides a cutting edge introduction to the field preparing first year graduate students and advanced undergraduates to understand and work in LHC physics at the dawn of what promises to be an era of experimental and theoretical breakthroughs Christopher Tully an active participant in the work at the LHC explains some of the most recent experiments in the field But this book which emerged from a course at Princeton University also provides a comprehensive understanding of the subject It explains every elementary particle physics process whether it concerns nonaccelerator experiments particle astrophysics or the description of the early universe as a gauge interaction coupled to the known building blocks of matter Designed for a one semester course that is complementary to a course in quantum field theory the book gives special attention to high energy collider physics and includes a detailed discussion of the state of the search for the Higgs boson Introduces elementary particle processes relevant to astrophysics collider physics and the physics of the early universe Covers experimental methods detectors and measurements Features a detailed discussion of the Higgs boson search Includes many challenging exercises Professors A supplementary Instructor's Manual which provides solutions for Chapters 1-3 of the textbook is available as a PDF It is restricted to teachers using the text in courses To obtain a copy please email your request to Ingrid_Gnerlich at press.princeton.edu

Astronomy & Astrophysics Philip A. Stahl, 2012-04-18 The present text was probably at least 35 years in the making preparation The astronomy and astrophysics content and problems appearing were collected from a number of basic and advanced astronomy and astrophysics courses and technical workshops at the Harry Bayley Observatory in Barbados from 1977-1989 Other content emerged from an extended series of articles written under the banner of Mathematics in Astronomy for The Journal of the Barbados Astronomical Society over 1977-1990 The content is of varying difficulty and ranges from simple astronomy problems to do with sidereal time stellar magnitudes and Kepler's planetary laws to spherical astronomy including using matrices for coordinate transformations and stellar evolution structure solar physics and galactic dynamics It will be no surprise that some topics and their related problems will be fairly easy to master while others e.g. Solar MHD galactic structure special relativity will be much more difficult Still I hope more adventurous readers will at least attempt the problems in the latter chapters An optics supplement is also included as well as a primer on differential equations which are really the skeleton key to doing any advanced physics astrophysics
