of sound media Delving into the history of pre electronic media like hand cranked gramophones comparatively eco friendly media artifacts such as the shellac discs that preceded the use of petroleum based vinyl early forms of portable technology like divining rods and even the use of songbirds as domestic music machines Smith builds a scaffolding of historical case studies to demonstrate how green media archaeology can make sound studies vibrate at an ecological frequency while opening the ears of eco criticism Throughout this eye opening and timely book he makes readers more aware of the costs and consequences of their personal media consumption by prompting comparisons with non digital non electronic technologies and by offering different ways in which sound media can become eco sonic media In the process he forges interdisciplinary connections opens new avenues of research and poses fresh theoretical questions for scholars and students of media sound studies and contemporary environmental history
