1. Terry: I love going out with my friends. Terry: He always pays for everybody. He just enjoys spending money! He's so different from his brother. That's my dad of course! The only problem with Harry is that he can be rather impolite. He isn't very polite and doesn't wait before he speaks. The other day he really upset my dad when he told him he was mean.
 2. Julie: My mum's amazing, really. She never loses her temper, she just stays really calm. She's got four children. Mine, my brother and my two sisters and that's all who do things but my sister, before we actually do them - but she doesn't get angry. She also works full time at the supermarket and doesn't get home till 10 o'clock. I don't know how she fits it all in. She never stops?
 3. Maria: My sister and I have completely different personalities. I like meeting new people and am happy to chat to people. I don't know - at parties, for example. But Sonia's a bit nervous in situations like that. She waits for people to come to her. But when she gets to know you and starts talking she really makes you laugh.
 4. Teresa: We're twins, but we aren't identical. We don't look alike, and our personalities aren't alike, either. For example, I don't say very much, normally I'm fairly quiet. Louisa is the complete opposite. She never stops! But she doesn't talk about herself. Just to me - for example she got fantastic marks in her exams but you never hear her talking about it.
- 1 generous, rude 2 patient, hard-working
3 shy, funny 4 talkative, modest

Journal of Education, 1909

Attracting and Keeping the Best Teachers Anna Sullivan, Bruce Johnson, Michele Simons, 2019-08-26 This book challenges dominant thinking about early career teachers and their work It offers an in depth and critical analysis of policies concerning the work of early career teachers and how they are supported during this critical period when they are highly vulnerable to leaving the profession Moreover the book provides examples from actual practice that illustrate how to help early career teachers make a successful transition into the profession These practices promote early career teachers development and help the profession as a whole to capitalize on the new knowledge and skills that these teachers bring to their classrooms and their students The book is divided into two main parts Part 1 deals with the difficult to define process of retaining early career teachers and its respective chapters consider this broad issue from an international perspective They explore how policies and practices have an impact on what happens in schools and what it means to be a teacher and to teach In turn Part 2 focuses on the need to reconsider the policies and practices that create the problem of early career teachers and offers alternative ways forward Each chapter addresses a specific aspect of the early career teacher retention issue contributing to a greater understanding of how we can rethink the work of early career teachers so that they can more successfully transition into the profession

Designing Teaching Strategies R. Douglas Greer, 2002-09-14 The US Dept of Education in conjunction with the US Dept of Health and Human Services recently unveiled a 50 million effort to expand research on early childhood cognitive development A key issue identified requiring more information and research was the education and professional development of educators Along these lines Doug Greer has prepared a book discussing how best to teach how to design functional curricula and how to support teachers in using state of the art science instruction materials The book provides important information both to trainers of future teachers current teachers and to supervisors and policy makers in education To trainers there is information on how to motivate mentor and instruct in service teachers to use the best scientifically based teaching strategies and tactics To in service teachers there is information on how to provide individualized instruction in classrooms with multiple learning and behavior problems school interventions to help prevent vandalism and truancy and how curricula and instruction can be designed to teach functional repertoires rather than inert ideas To policy makers and supervisors the book discusses how to determine the effectiveness of curricular initiatives toward meeting mandated standards in national assessments Doug Greer was recently awarded the Fred S Keller Award for Distinguished Contributions to Education by APA for the research and application of the material covered in this book School programs incorporating the material used in this book have produced 4 7 times more learning outcomes for students than control and baseline educational programs see www.cabas.com The book provides research based and field tested procedures for Teaching students of all ability levels ranging from preschool to secondary school How to teach special education students in the context of a regular classroom Best practices for all teachers to teach more effectively Means of monitoring and motivating teachers practices A comprehensive and system wide science of teaching post modern postmodern Tested procedures that result in four to seven times more learning for all students Tested procedures for supervisors to use with teachers that result insignificant student learning Tested procedures for providing the highest accountability A systems approach for schooling problems that provide solutions rather than blame Parent approved and parent requested educational practices Means for psychologists to work with teachers and students to solve behavior and learning problems A comprehensive systems science of schooling An advanced and sophisticated science of pedagogy and curriculum design Students who are not being served with traditional education can meet or exceed the performance of their more fortunate peers Supervisors can mentor teachers and therapists to provide state of the science instruction Parent education can create a professional setting for parents educators and therapists to work together in the best interests of the student Teachers and supervisors who measure as they teach produce significantly better outcomes for students Systemic solutions to instructional and behavioral problems involving teachers parents supervisors provide means to pursue problems to their solution A science of teaching as opposed to an art of teaching can provide an educational system that treats the students and the parents as the clients
