

A man in a cowboy hat and jeans stands in a field at sunset, holding a lasso. The background is a warm, orange-hued landscape with a low sun on the horizon. The man is wearing a brown shirt, blue jeans, and a large silver belt buckle. He has a tattoo on his left arm. The overall mood is dramatic and Western.

She lives by the rules.
He lives to break them.

Marianna Tax Choldin, Maurice Friedberg, 2024-11-26 The Red Pencil 1989 examines the many ways in which Soviet censorship interfered in the creative process in the words of those who experienced it first hand It helps to identify the ways in which Soviet artistic and intellectual production was shaped by the practices of Soviet censorship The book goes beyond the simple recounting of banned books and taboo subjects to examine the more subtle issue of how Soviet writers attempted to strike a balance between accommodating the demands of government censorship while retaining for themselves a modicum of unfettered expression and intellectual integrity Most of the contributing authors were active as writers critics editors film and theatre specialists or scientists prior to their departure from the Soviet Union in the 1970s A Cultural-Historical Study of Children Learning Science Marilyn Fleer, Niklas Pramling, 2014-10-01 This book moves beyond the traditional constructivist and social constructivist view of learning and development in science It draws upon cultural historical theory in order to theorise early childhood science education in relation to our currently globalised education contexts The book argues that concept development in science for young children can be better theorised by using Vygotsky's concept of Imagination and creativity Vygotsky's theory of play and his work on higher mental functions particularly the concept of inter and intrapsychological functioning Key concepts are extracted from the theoretical section of the book and used as categories for analysis in presenting evidence and new ideas in the second section of the book In this second part of the book the authors examine how science knowledge has been constructed within particular countries around the globe where empirical research in early childhood science education has occurred The third part of the book examines the nature of the encounter between the teacher and the child during science learning and teaching In the final part of the book the authors look closely at the range of models and approaches to the teaching of early childhood science that have been made available to early childhood teachers to guide their planning and teaching They conclude the book with a theoretical discussion of the cultural historical foundation for early childhood science education followed by a model of teaching scientific concepts to young children in play based settings including homes and community contexts *The three red knights; or, The brothers' vengeance by P.
