Selber, 2024-05-31 The field of technical communication is rapidly expanding in both the academic world and the private sector yet a problematic divide remains between theory and practice Here Stuart A Selber and Johndan Johnson Eilola both respected scholars and teachers of technical communication effectively bridge that gap Solving Problems in Technical Communication collects the latest research and theory in the field and applies it to real world problems faced by practitioners problems involving ethics intercultural communication new media and other areas that determine the boundaries of the discipline The book is structured in four parts offering an overview of the field situating it historically and culturally reviewing various theoretical approaches to technical communication and examining how the field can be advanced by drawing on diverse perspectives Timely informed and practical Solving Problems in Technical Communication will be an essential tool for undergraduates and graduate students as they begin the transition from classroom to career Integrated Business and Technical Communication'2001 E.

Abulencia,2001 Civic Engagement and Technical Communication James M. Dubinsky,J. Harrison Carpenter,2023-04-14

This special issue on civic engagement and technical communication focuses on the ways educators can help students become actively engaged members of society particularly a rhetorical democracy The first essay examines the concept of community as a locus for civic engagement and question some of the definitions of community seen embedded in current pedagogical practices The next article seeks to shape understanding of practice The tension of developing students civic awareness and engagement is the topic of the third paper The fourth article helps students gain skills and organization awareness and improves the perceived relevance of the work The final two essays approach the issue of civic engagement from slightly different angles one examining the role of teacher as both rhetor and instructor and the other looking to the past for possible solutions for the future By continuing the conversation about the relationship between technical communication and the public good and focusing specifically on pedagogical strategies and their theoretical and historical underpinnings the authors in this special issue clarify roles that technical communication and technical communicators play in civil society as well as ways curricula can be shaped to prepare students to fill those roles Technical Communication and the World Wide Web Carol Lipson,Michael Day,2005-05-06 Over the past decade the World Wide Web has dramatically changed the face of technical communication but the teaching of writing has thus far altered very little to accommodate this rapidly changing context Technical Communication and the World Wide Web offers substantial and broadly applicable strategies for teaching global communication issues affecting writing for the World Wide Web Editors Carol Lipson and Michael Day have brought together an exceptional group of experienced and well known teacher scholars to develop this unique volume addressing technical communication education The chapters here focus specifically on curriculum issues and the teaching of technical writing for the World Wide Web contributing a blend of theory and practice in proposing changes in curriculum and pedagogy Contributors offer classroom examples that teachers at all levels of experience can adapt for their own classes The volume provides comprehensive coverage of the technical communication curriculum from the two year level to the graduate level from service courses to degree programs This volume is an important and indispensable resource for technical writing educators and it will serve as an essential reference for curriculum and pedagogy development in technical communication programs How to Write and Present Technical Information Charles H.
