The Dying City Brian L. Tochtermann, 2017-05-08 In this eye opening cultural history Brian Tochtermann examines competing narratives that shaped post World War II New York City As a sense of crisis rose in American cities during the 1960s and 1970s a period defined by suburban growth and deindustrialization no city was viewed as in its death throes more than New York Feeding this narrative of the dying city was a wide range of representations in film literature and the popular press representations that ironically would not have been produced if not for a city full of productive possibilities as well as challenges Tochtermann reveals how elite culture producers planners and theorists and elected officials drew on and perpetuated the fear of death to press for a new urban vision It was this narrative of New York as the dying city Tochtermann argues that contributed to a burgeoning and broad anti urban political culture hostile to state intervention on behalf of cities and citizens Ultimately the author shows that New York's decline and the decline of American cities in general was in part a self fulfilling prophecy bolstered by urban fear and the new political culture nourished by it

How do we understand types of cinema that offer experiences of discomfort awkwardness or disquieting uncertainty This book examines a number of examples of such work at the heart of contemporary art and indie film While the commercial mainstream tends to offer comforting viewing experiences or moments of discomfort that exist largely to be overcome The Cinema of Discomfort analyses films in which discomfort is offered in a sustained manner Cinema of this kind confronts us with material such as distinctly uncomfortable sexual encounters It invites us into uncertain relationships with awkward and sometimes unlikable characters It presents us with challenging behaviour or what are presented as uncomfortable realities It often refuses information on which to base judgments More discomfortingly cinema of this kind tends to provoke uncertainty at the level of what emotional responses we are encouraged to have towards difficult sometimes controversial characters or events The Cinema of Discomfort examines a number of case studies including Palindromes by Todd Solondz US and Dogtooth from Yorgos Lanthimos Greece along with other examples from Austria Sweden the UK the US and Germany Offering close textual analysis of the manner in which discomfort is generated it also asks how we should understand the appeal of such work to certain viewers and how the existence of films of this kind can be explained as products of both their socio cultural context and the more particular institutional realms of art and indie film
