

Study Chapter: Blood

Be ready to explain these three blood reactions immediately:

1. Describe both a red blood cell's morphology and understand the underlying reasons of the shape.

2. Explain the difference of a blood plasma membrane and understand the underlying reasons of the difference.

1. Erythrocytes: Morphology: Biconcave disk. This cell shape helps them with their main function: oxygen transport. The biconcave shape increases the surface area for gas exchange while maintaining a small volume. The cell is also flexible, allowing it to squeeze through narrow blood vessels.
2. Leukocytes: A collection of cells that defend the body against infection and foreign invaders. They have various shapes and sizes, often with prominent nuclei.
3. Platelets: Small, disc-shaped cells that are essential for blood clotting. They lack a nucleus and are much smaller than red and white blood cells.
4. Plasma: The liquid component of blood that carries cells and nutrients. It is composed of water, electrolytes, and various proteins.

2. Describe at least two morphological changes that happen at various points throughout the blood's lifecycle (optional).

1. Enucleation: The process by which a red blood cell loses its nucleus as it matures. This allows for more space to carry hemoglobin and increases the cell's flexibility.

2. Retracted and biconcave: The shape of a red blood cell, which is biconcave. This shape is maintained by the cytoskeleton and helps the cell maintain its shape while moving through the bloodstream.
