Part 1 | Financial Planning
Performance, etc.

Topic 2.3 Recognition, Measurement, and Valuation – Taxes and Revenue

Accounting for Income Taxes

- After studying this content, you should be able to:
 - Differentiate between temporary differences and permanent differences and identify examples of each (1.4.2.1).
 - Distinguish between deferred tax liabilities and deferred tax assets (1.4.2.1).
 - Demonstrate an understanding of impairment for goodwill (2.3.1.1).

Deferred income tax refers to the difference between the income reported under GAAP or IFRS and the income reported for tax purposes. It arises from temporary differences between the book and tax bases of assets and liabilities. These differences will reverse over time, resulting in taxable income in the future. Examples of temporary differences include:

1. Not income under U.S. generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) or International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) can offer tax benefits when reported to government taxing authorities such as the United States Internal Revenue Service (IRS).
2. Differences are deferred to either liability or permanent depending on the nature of the difference.
3. Permanent differences occur when GAAP treatment and treatment of GAAP expenses are not identical under the tax law. These differences will never reverse because the underlying nature of the transaction is different.
4. Examples of non-deductible expenses:
 - a. Interest received from investments in state and municipal governments
 - b. Life insurance proceeds on the death of an insured executive
 - c. Portion of employee retention bonus that is U.S. compensation that is not deductible due to the executive's retained deduction
5. Examples of non-deductible expenses:
 - a. Investment expenses incurred to obtain investment income
 - b. Expenses paid for the insurance premium when the policy is the beneficiary
 - c. Compensation expense pertaining to some employee stock option plans
 - d. Fines or penalties due to violations of the law
