Smallholder Tree Growing for Rural Development and Environmental Services Denyse J. Snelder, Rodel D. Lasco, 2008-07-19 Recent history reveals that both the large scale reforestation projects of the 20th century have often been less successful than anticipated and that tree growing by smallholders as an alternative means to combat deforestation and promote sustainable land use has received relatively little attention from the scientific and development communities Taking a first step to addressing that balance this collection of peer reviewed papers adopts a comparative approach to explore the potential role that tree growing by farmers can play in sustainable forest management The goal of this approach is to identify common threads and to start to develop a framework for future research and practice Presenting case studies from the Philippines and comparative data from a number of Asian countries the book reveals that farmer tree growing has the potential to play a significant role in sustainable forest management and discusses the surrounding issues which must be addressed in order to realise this potential The book is primarily aimed at research scientists and graduate students interested in relevant aspects of forestry agroforestry agricultural diversity natural resource management and conservation in agricultural landscapes as well as those involved in sustainable development and international development studies It will also provide a valuable reference for professionals managers consultants policy makers and planners dealing with issues in sustainable development natural resource management land use change issues and participatory approaches to resource management

Vegetation Degradation in Central Asia under the Impact of Human Activities N. Kharin, 2011-06-27 This book is about desertification The author describes vegetation degradation as a part of the integral process of desert ecosystem degradation in Central Asia under the impact of human activities A connection is made between political and social factors and degradation of desert environments in historical perspective Fragile desert ecosystems suffer first of all from the loss of vegetation Wildlife is reduced productivity of desert rangelands fall and the people also suffer from a shortage of food The after effect of this process is catastrophic not only for the desert itself but also for the people living in the desert Several measures are also discussed in the book for conservation of desert vegetation and rehabilitation of desert lands Dryland East Asia: Land Dynamics amid Social and Climate Change Jiquan Chen, Shiqiang Wan, Geoffrey Henebry, Jiaguo Qi, Garik Gutman, Ge Sun, Martin Kappas, 2013-10-29 Drylands in East Asia DEA are home to more than one billion people with an environment vulnerable to natural and anthropogenic changes One of the critical needs in the region is to fully understand how dryland ecosystems respond to the changing climate and human activities in order to develop strategies to cope with continued climate change This book provides state of the art knowledge and information on drylands ecosystem dynamics changing climate society and land use in the region In addition to the synthesis of the existing research and knowledge of DEA the book provides a role model for regional ecological assessment With a wide spectrum of contributions from experts around the globe the book should be of interest to researchers and students both internationally and in East Asia Lessons learned from this synthesis effort in DEA should be useful for developing climate adaptation strategies for other similar regions around the globe Global Environment Outlook 3 United Nations Environment Programme, 2002 Integrating environment and development 1972 2002 State of the environment and policy retrospective 1972 2002 Human vulnerability to environmental change Outlook 2002 32 Options for action Drought characteristics and management in Central Asia and Turkey Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-06-28 The report assesses the occurrence and impacts of drought the current policies underlying drought management as well as the mitigation measures and responses adopted in Central Asia and Turkey with a focus on Agriculture Sector It is part of a series of similar studies carried out in different regions and countries of the world with the objective of shedding light on drought effects sensitizing policy makers for the much needed paradigm shift to pro active drought management planning and providing guidance for the development of such policies The studies are carried out by FAO in collaboration with the Water for Food Institute University of Nebraska Lincoln USA as a direct contribution to FAO s Strategic Objective Increasing the resilience of livelihoods to threats and crises Climate Change and Food Security in South Asia Rattan Lal, Mannava VK Sivakumar, S.M.A. Faiz, A.H.M. Mustafizur Rahman, Khandakar R. Islam, 2010-10-17 This book addresses an important topic of food security in South Asia with specific reference to climate change Of the 1 billion food insecure people in the world more than 30% are in South Asia The problem of food insecurity may be exacerbated by the projected climate change especially because of the water scarcity caused by rapid melting of the glaciers in the Himalayas and increase in variability in monsoonal rains and frequency of extreme events Furthermore large populations of Bangladesh and other coastal regions may be displaced by sea level rise Thus this volume addresses recommended land use and soil water crop vegetation management practices which would enable land managers to adapt to climate disruption by enhancing soil ecosystem social resilience In addition to biophysical factors this book also addresses the issues related to human dimensions including social ethnical and political considerations Military
