The Lancashire Witches A Romance Of Pendle Forest:

The Lancashire Witches (Historical Novel) William Harrison Ainsworth, 2019-12-18 This novel is based on the true story of the Pendle witches who were executed in 1612 for causing harm by witchcraft. The story begins against the backdrop of the 1536 Pilgrimage of Grace, an uprising by northern Catholics against the English Reformation instituted by King Henry VIII. John Paslew, Abbot of Whalley, tries to organize his forces in preparation for joining the main body of the rebel army, but he collides with Nicholas Demdike, known as the husband of a notorious witch. Demdike foretells the death of the abbot but claims that he can help him if he baptizes Demdike's daughter. The abbot declines, cursing the child to be a witch and the mother of witches. Following story is based largely on the official account of the Lancashire witch trials. The Lancashire Witches William Harrison Ainsworth, 2015-09-24 The Lancashire Witches A Romance of Pendle Forest By William Harrison Ainsworth Esq. COMPLETE VERSION The Lancashire Witches is the only one of William Harrison Ainsworth's forty novels that has remained continuously in print since its first publication. It was serialised in the Sunday Times newspaper in 1848; a book edition appeared the following year, published by Henry Colburn. The novel is based on the true story of the Pendle witches who were executed in 1612 for causing harm by witchcraft. Modern critics such as David Punter consider the book to be Ainsworth's best work. E. F. Bleiler rated the novel one of the major English novels about witchcraft. Ainsworth based his story largely on the official account of the Lancashire witch trials, written by the clerk to the court, Thomas Potts, first published in 1613 under the title The Wonderfull Discoverie of Witches in the Countie of Lancaster. Potts himself makes an appearance in the novel as a scheming and self-serving lawyer. Book one is set against the backdrop of the 1536 Pilgrimage of Grace, an uprising by northern Catholics against the English Reformation instituted by King Henry VIII. There were eight watchers by the beacon on Pendle Hill in Lancashire. Two were stationed on either side of the north-eastern extremity of the mountain. One looked over the castled heights of Clithero, the woody eminences of Bowland, the bleak ridges of Thornley, the broad moors of Bleasdale, the Trough of Bolland, and Wolf Crag, and even brought within his ken the black fells overhanging Lancaster. The other tracked the stream called Pendle Water almost from its source amid the neighbouring hills and followed its windings through the leafless forest until it united its waters to those of the Calder and swept on in swifter and clearer current to wash the base of Whalley Abbey. But the watcher's survey did not stop here. Noting the sharp spire of Burnley Church, relieved against the rounded masses of timber constituting Townley Park, as well as the entrance of the gloomy mountain gorge known as the Grange of Cliviger, his far-reaching gaze passed over Todmorden and settled upon the distant summits of Blackstone Edge. Dreary was the prospect on all sides: Black moor, bleak fell, straggling forest intersected with sullen streams as black as ink, with here and there a small tarn or moss pool, with waters of the same hue. These constituted the chief features of the scene. The whole district was barren and thinly populated. Of towns only Clithero, Colne, and Burnley, the latter little more than a village, were in view. In the valleys there were a few hamlets and scattered cottages, and on the uplands an occasional booth as the hut of the herdsman was termed but of more important mansions there were only six as Merley Twistleton Alcancoats Saxfeld Ightenhill and Gawthorpe The vaccaries for the cattle of which the herdsmen had the care and the lawnds or parks within the forest appertaining to some of the halls before mentioned offered the only evidences of cultivation All else was heathy waste morass and wood The Lancashire Witches William Harrison Ainsworth,2011-07

The trials of the Pendle witches in 1612 are among the most famous witch trials in English history and some of the best recorded of the 17th century The twelve accused lived in the area around Pendle Hill in Lancashire and were charged with the murders of ten people by the use of witchcraft All but two were tried at Lancaster Assizes in August 1612 along with the Samlesbury witches and others in a series of trials that have become known as the Lancashire witch trials One was tried at York Assizes during July 1612 and another died in prison Of the eleven individuals who went to trial nine women and two men ten were found guilty and executed by hanging and one was found not guilty Six of the Pendle witches came from one of two families each headed by a female in her eighties at the time of the trials Elizabeth Southern's her daughter Elizabeth Device and her grandchildren James and Alizon Device Anne Whittle and her daughter Anne Redferne The others accused were Jane Bulcock and her son John Bulcock Alice Nutter Katherine Hewitt Alice Gray and Jennet Preston The outbreaks of witchcraft in and around Pendle may demonstrate the extent to which people could make a living by posing as witches Many of the allegations resulted from accusations that members of the Demdike and Chattox families made against each other perhaps because they were in competition both trying to make a living from healing begging and extortion The Lancashire Witches William Harrison Ainsworth,1849 The Lancashire Witches John Gilbert,2018-07-10 The Lancashire Witches a Romance of Pendle Forest Ainsworth William Harrison,2016-06-23
