The Internet Playground Ellen Seiter, 2005 Based on four years of experience teaching computers to 8 12 year olds media scholar Ellen Seiter offers parents and educators practical advice on what children need to know about the Internet and when they need to know it The Internet Playground argues that contrary to the promises of technology boosters teaching with computers is very difficult Seiter points out that the Internet today resembles a mall more than it does a library While children love to play online games join fan communities and use online chat and instant messaging the Internet is also an appallingly aggressive marketer to children and as this book passionately argues an educational boondoggle Que's

Strom, Robert D. Strom, 2014-07-01 Teaching adolescents and learning from them is the paradigm elaborated throughout this second edition of Adolescents in the Internet Age The premise is based upon four assumptions 1 Adolescents have unique experiences that qualify them as the most credible source on what growing up is like in the current environment 2 Adolescents are more competent than many adults with tools of technology that will be needed for learning in the future 3 Adolescents and adults can support mutual development by adopting the concept of reciprocal learning and 4 The common quest of adolescents to gain adult identity could be attained before employment Expectations are the theme for every chapter The reason expectations are so important is because they influence goals determine priorities and are used to evaluate progress and achievements of individuals and institutions When teacher expectations correspond with the abilities and interests of students achievement and satisfaction are common outcomes In contrast if teachers expect too little student potential can be undermined There is also concern if expectations that students have for themselves surpass their abilities This occurs if teachers do not inform students about their deficits Multitasking doing too many things at the same time detracts from productivity Sharing accountability depends upon complimentary and attainable expectations that can be met by students teachers and parents To support appropriate expectations tthis book for secondary teachers and high school students seeking a broader understanding of their own generation is organized in four parts about aspects of learning and development 1 Identity expectations introduce traditional perspectives on adolescence changes related to sources of learning evolving emphasis of schools and ways to support motivation goal setting and formation of identity 2 Cognitive expectations examine mental abilities academic standards emergence of the Internet as a learning tool development of media literacy creative problem solving and encouragement of higher order thinking skills 3 Social expectations explore the need for giving greater attention to social development importance of teamwork skills involvement with social networking adoption of civil behavior school safety and values as a basis for ethical behavior and character 4 Health expectations center on decisions that influence physical health well being and lifestyle choice Consideration is given to stress management emotional intelligence and risk assessment strategies for individual teenagers and the schools that they attend

Worlds Gone Awry John J. Han, C. Clark Triplett, Ashley G. Anthony, 2018-08-22 Dystopian fiction captivates us by depicting future worlds at once eerily similar and shockingly foreign to our own This collection of new essays presents some of the most recent scholarship on a genre whose popularity has surged dramatically since the 1990s Contributors explore such novels as The Lord of the Flies The Heart Goes Last The Giver and The Strain Trilogy as social critique revealing how they appeal to the same impulse as utopian fiction the desire for an idealized yet illusory society in which evil is purged and justice prevails

The Routledge Companion to Global Internet Histories Gerard Goggin, Mark McLelland, 2017-02-17 The Routledge Companion to Global Internet Histories brings together research on the diverse Internet histories that have evolved in different regions language cultures and social contexts across the globe While the Internet is now in its fifth decade the understanding and formulation of its histories outside of an anglophone framework is still very much in its infancy From Tunisia to Taiwan this volume emphasizes the importance of understanding and formulating Internet histories outside of the anglophone case studies and theoretical paradigms that have thus far dominated academic scholarship on Internet history Interdisciplinary in scope the collection offers a variety of historical lenses on the development of the Internet as a new communication technology seen in the context of older technologies as a new form of sociality read alongside previous technologically mediated means of relating and as a new media vehicle for the communication of content

A Rhetoric of Meanings Gergana Apostolova, 2015-09-04 This book presents an in depth analysis of language s role as the tool and environment for human survival on Earth examining its ability to provide an unlimited space for telling individual stories that bear the knowledge of mankind s self significance The book is the result of a 20 year long composite study of language phenomenology grounded in the interactions of Bulgarian and English approached in a game like fashion where the play with language units transcends levels of meanings based on significances and explored through the four basic avatars of activated language the learner the teacher the translator and the creator of texts The book is divided into three sections the first details the motivation for this study and the design of the method of exploration This is followed by an application of this method to the talkative web in order to find ways of meeting the enormous demand for human content The final section brings together the colourful practices of activated language movement This book is not about the philosophy of language per se It is concerned with the practical field beyond the philosophy of language where the self identification of the Subject is brought to a higher stage of communicative creativity The rhetoric theory of argumentation is argued throughout the book to be the relevant ground for building a holistic tool of language learning where language acquisition is seen as the capability of the subject to construct worlds in a universe whose leading structure involves the rhetoric criteria of ethos pathos and logos on the one hand and the self identifying choice of meanings to situations of complex nature on the other As such the book is primarily concerned with linguistics rhetoric semiotics of culture ethics and language learning viewed through a philosophical preoccupation with humanity

Come of Age Stephen Jenkinson, 2018-07-03 In his landmark provocative style Stephen Jenkinson makes the case that we must birth a new generation of elders one poised and willing to be true stewards of the planet and its species Come of Age does not offer tips on how to be a better senior citizen or how to be kinder to our elders Rather with lyrical prose and incisive insight Stephen Jenkinson explores the great paradox of elderhood in North America how we are awash in the aged and yet somehow lacking in wisdom how we relegate senior citizens to the corner of the house while simultaneously heralding them as sage elders simply by virtue of their age Our own unreconciled relationship with what it means to be an elder has yielded a culture nearly bereft of them Meanwhile the planet boils and the younger generation boils with anger over being left an environment and sociopolitical landscape deeply scarred and broken Taking on the sacred cow of the family Jenkinson argues that elderhood is a function rather than an identity it is not a position earned simply by the number of years on the planet or the title parent or grandparent As with his seminal book Die Wise Jenkinson interweaves rich personal stories with iconoclastic observations that will leave readers radically rethinking their concept of what it takes to be an elder and the risks of doing otherwise Part critique part call to action Come of Age is a love song inviting us imploring us to elderhood in this time of trouble That time is now We re an hour before dawn and first light will show the carnage or the courage we

on conservation practices By addressing and answering some of the challenges facing net art and providing an exploration of its intersection with conservation the book casts a new light on net art conservation curating and museum studies Viewing net art as a process rather than as a fixed object the book considers how this is influenced by and executed through other systems and users Arguing that these processes and networks are imbued with ambiguity the book suggests that this is strategically used to create suspense obfuscate existing systems and disrupt power structures The rapid obsolescence of hard and software the existence of many net artworks within restricted platforms and the fact that artworks often act as assemblages that change or mutate make net art a challenging case for conservation Taking the performative and interpretive roles conservators play into account the book demonstrates how practitioners can make more informed decisions when responding to critically analysing or working with net art particularly software based processes Collecting and Conserving Net Art is intended for researchers academics and postgraduate students especially those engaged in the study of museum studies conservation and heritage studies curatorial studies digital art and art history The book should also be interesting to professionals who are involved in the conservation and curation of digital arts performance media and software

Online around the World Laura M. Steckman, Marilyn J. Andrews, 2017-05-24 Covering more than 80 countries around the world this book provides a compelling contemporary snapshot of how people in other countries are using the Internet social media and mobile apps How do people in other countries use the social media platform Facebook differently than Americans do What topics are discussed on the largest online forum one in Indonesia with more than seven million registered users Why does Mongolia rate in the top ten countries worldwide for peak Internet speeds Readers of Online around the World A Geographic Encyclopedia of the Internet Social Media and Mobile Apps will discover the answers to these questions and learn about people's Internet and social media preferences on six continents outside of the online community of users within the United States The book begins with an overview of the Internet social media platforms and mobile apps that chronologically examines the development of technological innovations that have made the Internet what it is today The country specific entries that follow the overview provide demographic information and describe specific events influenced by online communications allowing readers to better appreciate the incredible power of online interactions across otherwise unconnected individuals and the realities and peculiarities of how people communicate in today's fast paced globalized and high technology environment This encyclopedia presents social media and the Internet in new light identifying how the use of language and the specific application of human culture impacts emerging technologies and communications dramatically affecting everything from politics to social activism education and censorship The Right to the Smart City Paolo Cardullo, Cesare Di Feliciano, Rob Kitchin, 2019-06-07 Globally Smart Cities initiatives are pursued which reproduce the interests of capital and neoliberal government rather than wider public good This book explores smart urbanism and the right to the city examining citizenship social justice commoning civic participation and co creation to imagine a different kind of Smart City Giving Voice Meryl Alper, 2017-01-20 How communication technologies meant to empower people with speech disorders to give voice to the voiceless are still subject to disempowering structural inequalities Mobile technologies are often hailed as a way to give voice to the voiceless Behind the praise though are beliefs about technology as a gateway to opportunity and voice as a metaphor for agency and self representation In Giving Voice Meryl Alper explores these assumptions by looking closely at one such case the use of the Apple iPad and mobile app Proloquo2Go which converts icons and text into synthetic speech by children with disabilities including autism and cerebral palsy and their families She finds that despite claims to empowerment the hardware and software are still subject to disempowering structural inequalities

Views of technology as a great equalizer she illustrates rarely account for all the ways that culture law policy and even technology itself can reinforce disparity particularly for those with disabilities Alper explores among other things alternative understandings of voice the surprising sociotechnical importance of the iPad case and convergences and divergences in the lives of parents across class She shows that working class and low income parents understand the app and other communication technologies differently from upper and middle class parents and that the institutional ecosystem reflects a bias toward those more privileged Handing someone a talking tablet computer does not in itself give that person a voice Alper finds that the ability to mobilize social economic and cultural capital shapes the extent to which individuals can not only speak but be heard
