The Future of University Education Michał Izak,Monika Kostera,Michał Zawadzki,2017-04-26 This collected volume of essays offers glimpses of the future of university education While universities consider the spirit of theoretical exchange and intellectual pursuit to be a defining trait of their identity this book argues that this heritage is disappearing under the influence of the short term demands of societies and markets Universities used to be sites of dissent civil courage and societal conscience but have now instead become little more than pseudo businesses rendering them incapable of remaining critical or independent However with more people going to university every year there is a strong resistance to the notion that the university as a collegial and critical institution is dead among academics as well as the broader public With contributions from scholars across the world this edited collection explores the ramifications of marketization on universities and provides glimpses of what higher education will look like in the future It will be of great interest to teachers and students in higher education as well as policy makers and those interested in the current and future state of higher education Trust, Media and the Economy Joanna Paliszkievicz, Jerzy Gołuchowski, Katarzyna

Zdanowicz-Cyganiak, Kuanchin Chen, 2025-02-07 Trust Media and the Economy Mutual Relations delves into the critical relationships between trust media and economic behavior This book explores how trust in media influences economic decisions and how economic conditions impact media trustworthiness Divided into two parts it first examines the role of trust within media channels addressing topics such as the impact of clickbait the role of user generated content and trust dynamics across generations The second part focuses on how trusted communication affects economic outcomes discussing social media s role in economic communication the influence of financial influencers and trust based marketing The book features case studies from around the world including Poland France and the United States providing a broad geographical perspective It includes topical issues such as the trust dynamics in YouTube communities and greenwashing practices The contributors diverse expertise ensures a comprehensive analysis that is accessible to non specialists making it a valuable resource for booksellers librarians and general readers interested in media and economics By shedding light on these interactions the book offers groundbreaking insights into developing more reliable media practices and stronger economic trust foundations Academic Promotion for Clinicians Anne Walling, 2017-11-10 This book is a practical guide to the appointment promotion and tenure APT process for clinical faculty members employed by medical schools The number of clinical faculty members in US medical schools has increased exponentially in the last two decades At the same time faculty career tracks and promotion requirements have changed dramatically and medical schools have introduced multiple non tenure career tracks Currently only about 25% of the approximately 150 000 members of clinical departments This book provides insights and recommendations on career planning and academic promotion for clinical faculty members It also addresses much of the mythology surrounding the APT process and demonstrates how academic promotion should be used as a career building process rather than a daunting high risk event Topics include concepts and processes within academic promotion navigating the academic promotion and tenure process and managing the outcome of the APT application Academic Promotion for Clinicians is a valuable resource for clinical medicine faculty members as they engage in and successfully handle the challenges in the APT process and thus realize their career goals Information and Communication

Negotiations of the "new World" Sabine Selchow, 2017 In this book I develop the argument that the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global is more than a linguistic curiosity I argue it is a political phenomenon and as such a valuable albeit unconventional object of study for scholars outside the linguistics discourse I argue that the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global constitutes the discursive reproduction of a web of meanings that is best labelled new world As such the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global constitutes a distinct dimension of the enduring contestation over the construction of the world Given the word's current popularity and unscrutinised existence as well as the loaded nature of the web of meanings new world that it brings out I argue this dimension is not just a minor matter but plays an important hence research worthy role in the contemporary symbolic struggle over the world My conceptualisation of the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global as the reproduction of a web of meanings new world is grounded in two central insights that arise from my empirical engagement with the adjective global The first of these two insights is the empirically grounded understanding that the contemporary adjective global is closely enmeshed with the talk about different ideas associated with the word globalisation I call this talk globalisation discourse As I demonstrate the contemporary adjective global has come to be used in the sense of outcome of globalisation This makes the adjective a new word What is new about the contemporary global I argue is that it implies ideas that are associated with the word globalisation I develop my argument that the contemporary adjective global is best be taken as a new word by building on relevant discussions among lexicographers about when a word is appropriately called new as well as by drawing on a theory of language and meaning according to which language and meaning are not natural and referential but conventional and productive. The second central insight that arises from my empirical engagement with the contemporary global and that underlies my conceptualisation of the omnipresence of global as the re-production of a web of meanings new world refers to the word globalisation. It is the insight that all utterances which contain the word globalisation can be seen as constituting a discursive production of an object that is best labelled new world. In other words my conceptualisation of the omnipresence of global builds on my understanding that what all uses of the word globalisation have in common despite and in addition to the myriad of meanings that are associated with this word in whichever context it is used is that they imply the proclamation of a new world that came. This insight makes what I call globalisation discourse different from existing conceptualisations under this label such as the one by Hay and Smith 2005. Normally the globalisation discourse is conceptualised based on a scholarly preconception of what the word globalisation refers to such as market integration or the spread of neoliberalism. In contrast my suggestion that we understand the uses of the word globalisation as a discursive production of a web of meanings that is best called new world is grounded in an approach that takes the polysemy of the word globalisation seriously. In addition it builds on an elaboration of the question how and when the concepts globalisation and the neologism globalisation came to be in the true Foucault 1981: 61 i.e. became socially accepted and normal tools to grasp the world. As I discuss in this book developments which have come to be addressed with the word globalisation existed before this neologism became popular at the end of the 1980s and in the course of the 1990s. Given that meaning is not inherent in social reality but conventional the question arises why a new word was perceived to be needed and accepted at the end of the 1980s and 1990s i.e. at that particular moment in time. My answer to this question is that this was because the end of the Cold War was perceived to have brought out a new world for which existing conceptual tools were perceived to be inadequate. This new world was perceived as having produced a conceptual vacuum. This is apparent in assessments such as that of IR theorist James N. Rosenau 1990: 5 who argued after the end of the Cold War that observers were left without any paradigms or theories that adequately explain the course of events. I argue it was this perceived vacuum that opened the discursive door and let the concepts globalisation and the neologism globalisation step in to fill it. Consequently the use of the word globalisation can be conceptualised as re-producing and filling the conceptual space new world with meaning. It is the synthesis of these two insights that allows me to conceptualise the omnipresence of the contemporary adjective global as a distinct phenomenon namely as a discursive re-production of a web of meanings called new world. This phenomenon I argue in this book is relevant and interesting in two respects: Water and Energy International, 2014; Admap, 2010; Government Reports Annual Index, 1992; The Mechanical World, 1924; CORDIS Focus, 2004.
