The Transcriptionist A Novel:

The Transcriptionist Amy Rowland, 2014-05-13 Haunting and provocative Rowland's writing is compelling and masterful. Delia Ephron, author of The Lion Is In, once there were many transcriptionists at the Record, a behemoth New York City newspaper, but new technology has put most of them out of work. So now Lena, the last transcriptionist, sits alone in a room, a human conduit silently turning reporters' recorded stories into print until the day she encounters a story so shocking that it shatters the reverie that has become her life. This exquisite novel, written by an author who spent more than a decade as a transcriptionist at the New York Times, asks probing questions about journalism and ethics about the decline of the newspaper and the failure of language. It is also the story of a woman's effort to establish her place in an increasingly alien and alienating world. The Transcriptionist is suffused with prescient insight into journalism, ethics, and alienation. A thought-provoking original work. New York Journal of Books. Rowland seems that rare thing, the naturally gifted novelist. She deftly maps a very specific kind of urban loneliness, the inner ache of the intelligent, damaged soul who prefers the company of ideas and words to that of people. That urge to make words holy is at the heart of this novel's strange, sad beauty. The Washington Post. The Transcriptionist holds many pleasures and can be read through many lenses. Rowland plays with the notions of truth and reliability. Sharp and affecting. The New York Times Book Review. A strange, mesmerizing novel about the decline of newspapers and the subsequent loss of humanity, and yes, these are related. Booklist starred review. Ambitious and fascinating. Disturbing and powerful. Library Journal. Entering the city, Rowland creates, with its tightly strung dialogue and soulful, lonely citizens, a memorable experience. The Boston Globe. Unforgettable. Written with such delight, compassion, and humanity, it's newsworthy. Alex Gilvarry, author of From the Memoirs of a Non-Enemy Combatant. The Transcriptionist Amy

Rowland, 2015-08-01 First published in hardcover by Algonquin Books in 2014. The Transcription of Identities Min Zhou, 2015-06-15 Based on a study of V. S. Naipaul's postcolonial writings, this book explores the process of postcolonial subjects' special route of identification. This enables the readers to see how in our increasingly diverse and fragmented post-modern world, identity is a vibrant, complex, and highly controversial concept. The old notion of identity as a prescribed and self-sufficient entity is now replaced by identity as a plural, floating, and becoming process. Min Zhou shows how postcolonial literature, among other artistic forms, is one of the most representative reflections of this floating identity. Small-molecule Transcription Factor Inhibitors in Oncology Khondaker Miraz Rahman, David Thurston, 2018-09-05. Oncogenic transcription factors are an increasingly important target for anticancer therapies. Inhibiting these transcription factors could allow tumour cells to be reprogrammed, leading to apoptosis or differentiation from the malignant phenotype. As the use of kinase inhibitors is gradually declining, transcription factor inhibition is the next hot topic for oncology research and merits much attention. This book highlights recent progress in the development of small molecule
