Newman, Hella Winston, 2016-04-19 From Katherine Newman award winning author of No Shame in My Game and sociologist Hella Winston a sharp and irrefutable call to reenergize this nation's long neglected system of vocational training After decades of off shoring and downsizing that have left blue collar workers obsolete and stranded the United States is now on the verge of an industrial renaissance But we don't have a skilled enough labor pool to fill the positions that will be created which are in many cases technically demanding and require specialized skills A decades long series of idealistic educational policies with the expressed goal of getting every student to go to college has left a generation of potential workers out of the system Touted as a progressive egalitarian institution providing opportunity even to those with the greatest need the American secondary school system has in fact deepened existing inequalities We can do better argue acclaimed sociologists Katherine Newman and Hella Winston Taking a page from the successful experience of countries like Germany and Austria where youth unemployment is a mere 7% they call for a radical reevaluation of the idea of vocational training long discredited as an instrument of tracking The United States can prepare a new high performance labor force if we revamp our school system to value industry apprenticeship and rigorous technical education By doing so we will not only be able to meet the growing demand for skilled employees in dozens of sectors where employers decry the absence of well trained workers we will make the American Dream accessible
