

Smaller green wire (high beams) from 54b on the dimmer relay.

NOTE The oil pressure wire is NOT long enough to reach the speedometer from the engine. I suggest splicing it with another gauge wire in the middle and hiding this other wire in the routing so not to confuse yourself, like pictured.

Engine

NOTE Credit goes to Samba user folmescott for making the turn signal work!
 The two diodes can be purchased from Watson (FY-TSD) and is NEEDED for things to work properly. If you can solder or don't want to, make sure you purchase it with your order. To make your own, the diodes are 1 amp and can be bought at Radio Shack for a buck each. Make sure you orient them as pictured.
 The universal diode can be purchased at any auto parts store or Radio Shack. It's a generic part, not from any specific car. Wire it up as shown. Green and orange are just arbitrary, use whatever color you want.
