Overlapping the observed 1990 income classes that have collapsed in growth and high growth economies, it is necessary to split the income class groups to achieve consistency in the comparison of each individual group across the 10 representative of the economies.

Abstract: This study examined the relationship between the use of the Internet and the use of other information sources. The study was conducted in a sample of 1000 adults. The results showed that the use of the Internet was positively related to the use of other information sources. The study also found that the use of the Internet was related to the use of other information sources in a non-linear fashion. The study has implications for the use of the Internet in the future.
