Rethinking Khoe and San Indigeneity, Language and Culture in Southern Africa Julie Grant,Keyan G.

Tomaselli,2022-09-19 The San hunter gatherers and Khoe herders of southern Africa were dispossessed of their land before during and after the European colonial period which started in 1652 They were often enslaved and forbidden from practicing their culture and speaking their languages In South Africa under apartheid after 1948 they were reclassified as Coloured which further undermined Khoe and San culture forcing them to reconfigure and realign their identities and loyalties Southern Africa is no longer under colonial or apartheid rule the San and Khoe however continue in the struggle to maintain the remnants of their languages and cultures and are marginalised by the dominant peoples of the region The San in particular continue to command very extensive research attention from a variety of disciplines from anthropology and linguistics to genetics They are however usually studied as static historical objects but they are not merely peoples of the past as is often assumed they are very much alive in contemporary society with cultural and language needs This book brings together studies from a range of disciplines to examine what it means to be Indigenous Khoe and San in contemporary southern Africa It considers the current constraints on Khoe and San identity language and culture constantly negotiating an indeterminate social positioning where they are treated as the inconvenient indigenous. Usually studied as original anthropos but out of their time, this book shifts attention from the past to the present and how the San have negotiated language literacy and identity for coping in the period of modernity. It reveals that Afrikaans is indeed an African language incubated not only by Cape Malay slaves working in the kitchens of the early Dutch settlers but also by the Khoen and San who interacted with sailors from passing ships plying the West coast of southern Africa from the 14th century. The book re-examines the idea of literacy, its relationship to language and how these shape identity. The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal Critical Arts: South North Cultural and Media Studies.

Partnership and Transformation Leda Stott, 2022-11-24 Over the last 30 years partnership has received growing attention across a range of sectors and disciplines Widely used to describe a relationship in which different actors pool their resources knowledge and skills to address common problems partnership is currently presented as central to the achievement of more inclusive and sustainable development Rejecting one size fits all approaches and mindful of different understandings of the term Partnership and Transformation The Promise of Multi stakeholder Collaboration in Context which is designed to appeal to both academics and practitioners alike argues that partnership must be understood in relation to specific contexts and the added value it may offer for individuals organisations and wider society It is further suggested that the transformational potential of partnership rests critically upon a move away from purely instrumental considerations of its worth to a deeper appreciation of its intrinsic value as a process based on interpersonal relationships A stronger balance between pragmatic and reflective dimensions of partnership can the author claims enhance opportunities for meaningful deliberation and productive conflict and contribute to the systems change needed for a global citizenship that embraces human well being and stewardship of the planet
