The Early Republic

Complete Unit Guide Packet

Overview

The ratification of the Constitution and election of George Washington as America's first president marks the beginning of the Republic and the start of the American Revolution. However, the nation was not united in the summer of 1789. Tensions in Pennsylvania led to a protest known as the Whiskey Rebellion that Washington himself went to put down.

A crisis in Washington's Capital led to the development of America's first political parties. Federalists and Democratic-Republicans. Washington warned against the development along with America getting entangled in foreign affairs in the Neutrality Proclamation. The First Federalist John Adams represented the pro-British neutral position and later secured victory. His victory was the XYZ Affair and resulting Quincy Massacre. The resulting unrest led Adams to sign a bill known as the Alien and Sedition Acts. These controversial laws made it harder to get congressional members in office. Adams's president is important for citizens who were worried religious and unimposed making these statements that were critical of the government.

Adams was defeating Jefferson in the election of 1800. Jefferson called it a "Revolution" and it was the peaceful transfer of power to the Democratic-Republican Party. Jefferson wanted the expansion of the United States with the Louisiana Purchase and began a "Virginia Dynasty" that lasted the presidency from 1800 to 1808. After Jefferson's two terms as president, he was followed by one other federalist, James Monroe. The Virginia, some federalist and some republicans. After Monroe was elected, he took over England in the War of 1812. Monroe got America into a peaceful end known as the "Era of Good Feelings".
