

This is a study guide for the first exam—meaning these topics are of particular importance for the exam. You are responsible for knowing the information covered in the assigned readings and in class lectures and discussions. However, by focusing on the items listed below, you should find few surprises on the exam. You should, of course, be able to provide responses to these questions and understand what those responses mean.

Remember that you are allowed to use an 8 ½ by 11 inch information sheet with notes on one side (and only one side) during the exam. Be sure to follow the guidelines for creating the information sheet that were listed on the course syllabus and discussed in class.

Chapter 1: Introduction to communication theory

- Know the two definitions of theory discussed in class (Borman, Burgoon)
- Know the definitions of communication discussed in class
- Know what a grand theory of communication would be and know the reason why no such theory currently exists
- What is the author of the text's view of theory

Chapter 2: Talk about theory

- What are the two major approaches to studying communication theory?
- What are the five fundamental differences between those two approaches?
- How would a social scientist analyze messages like a music video, a television commercial, or a print advertisement? How would an interpretive scholar analyze those same messages?

Chapter 3: Standards for evaluation

- What are the five standards for evaluating a scientific communication theory?
- What are the five standards for evaluating an interpretive communication theory?
- Why are there two different sets of standards?
- What are the similarities between those two sets of standards?

Chapter 5: Symbolic interactionism

- What is the meaning of "meaning?"
- What does it mean to say that people act toward other people or things on the basis of the meanings they assign to those people or things?
- What is the definition of "language?"
- According to the theory is meaning inherent or negotiated?
- What is a default assumption? Can you provide an example of a default assumption? What is a self-fulfilling prophecy?
