1. This is correct, there is not a "yes" or "no" answer. Rather, the answer is "it depends on the circumstances, particularly the amount of time that has elapsed since the transaction occurred." See the discussion of the "discovery" rule in the comments to the question.
2. The "discovery" rule is the rule that states that the statute of limitations is not triggered until the plaintiff discovers, or should have discovered, the injury. This rule is applied to cases where the injury is not immediately apparent, such as in cases of latent diseases, latent defects in construction, and latent defects in products.
3. Statute of limitations: The statute of limitations is the time period within which a lawsuit must be filed. If a lawsuit is not filed within the statute of limitations, the court will dismiss the case. The statute of limitations is a defense that can be raised by the defendant.
