1. DNA: The Genetic Material
 - DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) is the genetic material that stores and transmits hereditary information.
 - It is composed of two long strands forming a double helix structure, composed of nucleotides.
 - Nucleotides consist of a sugar (deoxyribose), a phosphate group, and a nitrogenous base (Adenine, Thymine, Guanine, or Cytosine).
 - DNA contains the genetic instructions necessary for the growth, development, functioning, and reproduction of organisms.
2. Replication of DNA
 - DNA replication is the process by which a cell makes an identical copy of its DNA.
 - It occurs during the S phase of the cell cycle.
 - The process is semi-conservative, meaning each new DNA molecule consists of one original strand and one newly synthesized strand.
 - Synthesis of DNA follows a template strand, which separates the DNA strands, while DNA polymerase adds complementary nucleotides to each strand.
 - The result is two identical DNA molecules, each containing one original strand and one newly synthesized strand.
3. DNA, RNA, and Protein
 - DNA serves as the template for the synthesis of RNA molecules within a process called transcription.
 - RNA is single-stranded and contains ribose sugar instead of deoxyribose.
 - There are three main types of RNA: messenger RNA (mRNA), transfer RNA (tRNA), and ribosomal RNA (rRNA).
 - mRNA carries the genetic information from DNA to the ribosome, where proteins are synthesized.
 - tRNA transfers amino acids to the ribosome during protein synthesis, based on the information carried by mRNA.
 - rRNA is a structural component of ribosomes, which are the sites of protein synthesis.
4. Gene Expression and Regulation
 - Gene expression is the process by which the information encoded in a gene is used to synthesize a functional gene product (usually a protein).
 - Gene expression is regulated by various factors, including environmental factors, developmental stage, and cellular feedback mechanisms.
 - Mutations in regulatory regions of DNA can lead to changes in gene expression, which can result in genetic disorders or cancer.
