IT Revolution Mihaela Ulieru, Peter Palensky, René Doursat, 2009-07-30 Mitigating Paradox at the eSociety Tipping Point In the first two decades of the past Century having as driving factor the automobile and its mass production the command economy has radically changed our lifestyles enabling the creation of offices suburbs fast food restaurants and unified school districts With the Internet as driving factor socio technical and industrial eNetworked ecosystems are about to change our lives again in these two decades of the twenty first century and we are just approaching the tipping point As we have just reached the point where the tremendous changes fueled by concerted efforts in information communication technologies ICT research are unraveling the old society this is creating a lot of discomfort confusion and sometimes opposition from the traditional mainstream This disconnect is being deepened even more by the rocketing speed of technological ICT advances As technology is getting ahead of society the old ways although still do nant become more and more dysfunctional and we are experiencing an age of paradox as the new ways disrupt the way we used to do things and even the way we used to think about the world Just like the major inventions that shaped the last century were made by 1920 it is expected that the major inventions that will shape the twenty first century are going to be made by 2020 Destroying Sanctuary Sandra L. Bloom, Brian Farragher, 2010-10-28 For the last thirty years the nation s mental health and social service systems have been under relentless assault with dramatically rising costs and the fragmentation of service delivery rendering them incapable of ensuring the safety security and recovery of their clients The resulting organizational trauma both mirrors and magnifies the trauma related problems their clients seek relief from Just as the lives of people exposed to chronic trauma and abuse

become organized around the traumatic experience so too have our social service systems become organized around the recurrent stress of trying to do more under greater pressure they become crisis oriented authoritarian disempowered and demoralized often living in the present moment haunted by the past and unable to plan for the future Complex interactions among traumatized clients stressed staff pressured organizations and a social and economic climate that is often hostile to recovery efforts recreate the very experiences that have proven so toxic to clients in the first place Healing is possible for these clients if they enter helping protective environments yet toxic stress has destroyed the sanctuary that our systems are designed to provide This thoughtful impassioned critique of business as usual begins to outline a vision for transforming our mental health and social service systems Linking trauma theory to organizational function Destroying Sanctuary provides a framework for creating truly trauma informed services The organizational change method that has become known as the Sanctuary Model lays the groundwork for establishing safe havens for individual and organizational recovery The goals are practical improve clinical outcomes increase staff satisfaction and health increase leadership competence and develop a technology for creating and sustaining healthier systems Only in this way can our mental health and social service systems become empowered to make a more effective contribution to the overall health of the nation Destroying Sanctuary is a stirring call for reform and recovery required reading for anyone concerned with removing the formidable barriers to mental health and social services from clinicians and administrators to consumer advocates Management 3.0 Jurgen

Rethinking Public Strategy Sean Lusk, Nick Birks, 2014-07-23 Strategy is vital to effective and efficient public service delivery as well as successful governance and leadership This new text provides a concise yet systematic overview of the achievements downfalls and complexities of public strategy in today's globalized and often market driven world It describes the place of strategy in civic societies whose citizens are more interconnected and vocal than ever It shows that successful strategic planning goes well beyond problem solving to developing adaptable plans that can evolve as requirements and circumstances change And it explains why muddling through simply won't work Emphasizing the importance of applying a variety of techniques to the process of strategy creation Rethinking Public Strategy reassesses the key factors that can deliver significant improvements in public services and build public value It looks at why public strategy is distinctive as well as the principles it has in common with the corporate domain This text includes numerous case studies from around the globe from South Africa to Singapore the USA to Germany and from China to the Czech Republic that ground the exposition in real experience Based on state of the art research by two expert practitioners in the field it offers an essential guide to the art of strategy in the contemporary public sector and encourages readers to evaluate critically the various approaches to strategy

Education 3.0 and eLearning Across Modalities Borden, Jeff D., 2021-08-20 For many years there has been a quest to discover the best teaching and learning methods in order to strengthen the classroom and the mind Researchers now know more than ever before about the brain's impact on learning historical triggers that lead to deep learning and how to scale education with technology Yet much of what is known is under utilized in the classrooms of today if leveraged at all Education 3.0 and eLearning Across Modalities showcases effective practices based on innovative initiatives research and practitioner experiences from the past two decades The effective practices of multi modal learning which are well known to practitioners but largely unknown to the general academic are explained in detail while making each technique approachable and attainable regardless of institution size or modality Covering topics such as distance learning modern learning technologies and learning innovation this book is essential for teachers educational software developers IT consultants instructional designers curriculum developers graduate students undergraduate students academicians administrators higher education faculty and researchers

Designed for Death Steven Umbrello, 2022-09-19 Autonomous weapons systems often referred to as killer robots have been a hallmark of popular imagination for decades However with the inexorable advance of artificial intelligence systems AI and robotics killer robots are quickly becoming a reality These lethal technologies can learn adapt and potentially make life and death decisions on the battlefield with little to no human involvement This naturally leads to not only legal but ethical concerns as to whether we can meaningful control such machines and if so then how Such concerns are made even more poignant by the ever present fear that something may go wrong and the machine may carry out some action s violating the ethics or laws of war Researchers policymakers and designers are caught in the quagmire of how to approach these highly controversial systems and to figure out what exactly it means to have meaningful human control over them if at all In Designed for Death Dr Steven Umbrello aims to not only produce a realistic but also an optimistic guide for how with human values in mind we can begin to design killer robots Drawing on the value sensitive design VSD approach to technology innovation Umbrello argues that context is king and that a middle path for designing killer robots is possible if we consider both ethics and design as fundamentally linked Umbrello moves beyond the binary debates of whether or not to prohibit killer robots and instead offers a more nuanced perspective of which types of killer robots may be both legally and ethically acceptable when they would be acceptable and how to design for them
