Cameron-Smith, 2019-02-28 In his day Raphael Cilento was one of the most prominent and controversial figures in Australian medicine. As a senior medical officer in the Commonwealth and Queensland governments, he was an active participant in public health reform during the inter-war years and is best known for his vocal engagement with public discourse on the relationship between hygiene, race, and Australian nationhood. Yet Cilento's work on tropical hygiene and social welfare ranged beyond Australia, especially when he served as a colonial medical officer in British Malaya and in the Mandated Territory of New Guinea. He also worked with the League of Nations Health Organization in the Pacific Islands and oversaw international social welfare programs for the United Nations. On one level, this professional mobility allowed ideas and practices of public health and government to circulate between colonial spaces of northern Australia, the Pacific Islands, and Asia. On another, it meant that Cilento's Pacific colonialism and colonial experience shaped his understanding of Australian national health and welfare. Rather than attempt a comprehensive biography of Cilento, this book instead uses his border-crossing career as a means to explore several material and discursive facets of Australia's relationships to the Pacific and the world.

The Civic World of Early Renaissance Florence Gene A. Brucker, 2015-03-08 Professor Brucker contends that changes in the social order provide the key to understanding the transition of Florence from a medieval to a Renaissance city. In this book, he shows how Florentine politics were transformed from corporate to elitist. He bases his work on a thorough examination of archival material, providing a full socio-political history that extends our knowledge of the Renaissance city-state and its development. The author describes the restructuring of the political system, showing first how the corporate entities that comprised the traditional social order had lost cohesiveness after the Black Death. He traces the process of readjustment that began during the guild regime of 1378-1382 and analyzes the impact of foreign affairs. During the crisis years of the Visconti wars, distinctive features emerged of an elitist regime whose vitality was demonstrated following the death of Giangaleazzo Visconti and whose membership and style the author discusses in detail. Originally published in 1977, The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print-on-demand technology to again make available previously out-of-print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press. The Concept of Necessity in International Law and the World Trade Organization Senai W. Andemariam, 2024-06-03 Like many concepts in international law, the definition of necessity varies widely depending on context. This book presents the evolution of the concept of necessity and discusses its definitions in nine different fields of international law. Centering customary international law and

Like the Grateful Dead's best music, Garcia's A Signpost to New Space is familiar, friendly, and inviting.

Catland Kathryn Hughes, 2024-06-04. In Catland, Kathryn Hughes chronicles the cat craze of the early twentieth century through the life and career of Louis Wain. Wain's anthropomorphic drawings of cats in top hats, falling in love, sipping champagne, golfing, driving cars, and piloting planes are some of the most instantly recognizable images from the era. His round-faced, fluffy characters established the prototype for the modern cat, which cat fanciers were busily trying to achieve using their newfound knowledge of the latest scientific breeding techniques. Despite being a household name, Wain endured multiple bankruptcies and mental breakdowns, spending his last fifteen years in an asylum drawing abstract and multicolored felines. But it was his ubiquitous anthropomorphic cats that helped usher the formerly reviled creatures into homes across Europe.

From Fu Manchu to Kung Fu Panda Naomi Greene, 2014-03-31

Throughout the twentieth century, American filmmakers have embraced cinematic representations of China. Beginning with D. W. Griffith's silent classic Broken Blossoms (1919) and ending with the computer-animated Kung Fu Panda (2008), this book explores China's changing role in the American imagination. Taking viewers into zones that frequently resist logical expression or more orthodox historical investigation, the films suggest the welter of intense and conflicting impulses that have surrounded China. They make clear that China has often served as the very embodiment of otherness, a kind of yardstick or cloudy mirror of America itself. It is a mirror that reflects not only how Americans see the racial other but also a larger landscape of racial, sexual, and political perceptions that touch on the ways in which the nation envisions itself and its role in the world. In the United States, the exceptional emotional charge that imbues images of China has tended to swing violently from positive to negative and back again. China has been loved and, as is generally the case today, feared. Using film to trace these dramatic fluctuations, author Naomi Greene relates them to the larger arc of historical and political change. Suggesting that filmic images both reflect and fuel broader social and cultural impulses, she argues that they reveal a constant tension or dialectic between the self and the other. Significantly, with the important exception of films made by Chinese or Chinese-American directors, the Chinese other is almost invariably portrayed in terms of the American self. Placed in a broader context, this ethnocentrism is related both to an ever-present sense of American exceptionalism and to a Manichean world view that perceives other countries as friends or enemies. Greene analyzes a series of influential films, including classics like Shanghai Express (1932), The Bitter Tea of General Yen (1933), The Good Earth (1936), and Shanghai Gesture (1941), important Cold War films such as The Manchurian Candidate (1962) and The Sand Pebbles (1966), and a range of contemporary films, including Chan's

Missing 1982 The Wedding Banquet 1993 Kundun 1997 Mulan 1998 and Shanghai Noon 2000 Her consideration makes clear that while many stereotypes and racist images of the past have been largely banished from the screen the political cultural and social impulses they embodied are still alive and well
