Development Formula

The present system uses a "development formula" which is a formula for determining the amount of material to be used in the development of a project. The formula is based on the following factors:

- 1. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 2. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 3. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 4. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 5. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 6. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 7. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 8. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 9. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
- 10. The amount of material to be used in the development of a project.
