Democracy and Development R.C. Bhardwaj, K. Vijayakrishnan, 2018-10-26 Published in 1998 The question of whether democracy and development are allies or adversaries has long been debated and with the triumph of the democratic spirit worldwide the relationship between democracy and development has once again come to attract much attention globally The collapse of the Soviet Union and the developments in Eastern Europe led to considerable rethinking in political circles on the efficacy of the economic policies pursued in those countries and the long term viability of political systems prevalent there Elsewhere several newly industrialized countries are striving to consolidate their gains though there are differing perceptions of whether their politics conform to the classical framework of democracy or not In a remarkable turn around some other countries have initiated measures for economic reforms and structural adjustment setting aside their earlier approaches towards economic management In short the last decades of this millennium have witnessed meaningful efforts worldwide on forging a new partnership between democracy and development In February 1996 the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association jointly organized a conference entitled Parliamentary Democracy and Development Allies or Adversaries with the Wilton Park an international agency of the British Commonwealth and Foreign Office in Wilton House West Sussex United Kingdom The week long conference brought together parliamentarians diplomats administrators political scientists economists and specialists from all over the world The participants shared their views and experiences on diverse aspects of the main theme This publication presents an essentially parliamentary perspective on the correlation between democracy and development based on the discussions at the Wilton Park conference and in the light of current thinking on the subject matter

Gender, Generation and Poverty Sylvia H. Chant, 2007-01-01 The feminisation of poverty is viewed as a global trend and of particular concern in developing regions Yet although popularisation of the term may have raised women's visibility in development discourses and gone some way to encourage gender policies for poverty reduction the construct is only weakly substantiated This work covers this topic

Human Development Report 1995 United Nations Development Programme, 1995 This sixth edition of the widely respected Human Development Report updates the unique Human Development Indicators comparing human development in most countries of the world and the data tables on all aspects of human development This edition includes a special section that examines issues of gender analyzing global trends in closing and widening gender gaps in different regions and countries It presents new indicators of gender equality in order to rank countries on a global scale while it highlights policies that have ensured equal access to opportunities for men and women The issue also proposes new methodologies to measure and value unpaid contributions made by men and women to human development through household and community activities and it identifies a new action agenda for promoting gender equality in the decades ahead
