

TECHNICAL ANALYSIS

A man with grey hair, wearing a dark suit, white shirt, and patterned tie, stands with his hands in his pockets against a background of a sunset or sunrise sky. The sky transitions from a deep blue at the top to a bright orange and yellow at the bottom, where the silhouette of a horizon is visible.

Prediction of Stock Market Index Movements with Machine Learning Nazif AYYILDIZ,2023-12-16 The book titled Prediction of Stock Market Index Movements with Machine Learning focuses on the performance of machine learning methods in forecasting the future movements of stock market indexes and identifying the most advantageous methods that can be used across different stock exchanges In this context applications have been conducted on both developed and emerging market stock exchanges The stock market indexes of developed countries such as NYSE 100 NIKKEI 225 FTSE 100 CAC 40 DAX 30 FTSE MIB TSX and the stock market indexes of emerging countries such as SSE BOVESPA RTS NIFTY 50 IDX IPC and BIST 100 were selected The movement directions of these stock market indexes were predicted using decision trees random forests k nearest neighbors naive Bayes logistic regression support vector machines and artificial neural networks methods Daily dataset from 01 01 2012 to 31 12 2021 along with technical indicators were used as input data for analysis According to the results obtained it was determined that artificial neural networks were the most effective method during the examined period. Alongside artificial neural networks, logistic regression and support vector machines methods were found to predict the movement direction of all indexes with an accuracy of over 70%. Additionally, it was noted that while artificial neural networks were identified as the best method, they did not necessarily achieve the highest accuracy for all indexes. In this context, it was established that the performance of the examined methods varied among countries and indexes but did not differ based on the development levels of the countries. As a conclusion, artificial neural networks, logistic regression, and support vector machines methods are recommended as the most advantageous approaches for predicting stock market index movements.

The Oxford Handbook of Computational Economics and Finance Shu-Heng Chen, Mak Kaboudan, Ye-Rong Du, 2018. The Oxford Handbook of Computational Economics and Finance provides a survey of both the foundations of and recent advances in the frontiers of analysis and action. It is both historically and interdisciplinarily rich and also tightly connected to the rise of digital society. It begins with the conventional view of computational economics, including recent algorithmic development in computing rational expectations, volatility, and general equilibrium. It then moves from traditional computing in economics and finance to recent developments in natural computing, including applications of nature-inspired intelligence, genetic programming, swarm intelligence, and fuzzy logic. Also examined are recent developments of network and agent-based computing in economics. How these approaches are applied is examined in chapters on such subjects as trading robots and automated markets. The last part deals with the epistemology of simulation in its trinity form with the integration of simulation, computation, and dynamics. Distinctive is the focus on natural computationalism and the examination of the implications of intelligent machines for the future of computational economics and finance. Not merely individual robots but whole integrated systems are extending their immigration to the world of Homo sapiens or symbiogenesis. FNIRS in
