family's growing involvement with her learning supported the developing literacy that helped her cope with her increasingly critical handicap. There are many participants here; their voices and perspectives are represented in Jamie's own writings and especially in the unique parent-child reading journal that contributed so much to her social and academic growth. The story goes on to relate the unanticipated turn of events in Jamie's third-grade year and how her literacy enabled her to deal with those events and to influence others as well. Jamie brings you inside a classroom in which reflective teaching practice unquestionably empowered both the teacher and the students. Jamie's story touches on a host of critical educational issues: parent involvement, inclusion, assessment, curriculum reform, equity, and justice for all learners. It will not be forgotten. Jim Kobak's Kirkus Reviews, 1986

The Braid of Literature Shelby Anne Wolf, Shirley Brice Heath, 1992

As parent reading partner and social science observer, Shelby Wolf documented countless moments during the preschool and early grade school years of her two daughters. The Braid of Literature interweaves her careful observations and analysis with Shirley Brice Heath's insightful commentary drawing on current research in anthropology, linguistics, and cognitive psychology. Together they have produced an unusual study of two young children who are learning to negotiate between the multiple texts of their everyday lives and their make-believe story worlds. For researchers, this book will serve as a rich resource on a range of interdisciplinary topics. For parents and teachers, it is dramatic confirmation of the important role that literary language can play in children's literacy and socialization.
