Examining Crime and Justice around the World Janet P. Stamatel, 2020-11-04 A thorough and timely investigation of both well established and emerging crime and punishment issues this book provides readers with compelling examples of how different countries around the world confront these problems This book offers a detailed look at 10 hot topics in crime and punishment that are shared by many countries Some of these topics are well established within the field of criminology such as patterns of criminal behavior juvenile delinquency drug trafficking policing and punishment others are emerging topics that have not been well studied across a variety of countries such as violence against women hate crimes and gun control Within each topic the book explores how eight countries experience the issue highlighting similarities across different places as well as unique treatments of the problem The chapter on punishment addresses the widespread use of incarceration as criminal punishment but also considers different philosophies with respect to the purpose of incarceration and whether or not this strategy is effective in the face of large scale criminal events such as mass atrocities The country narratives provide historical context for understanding the particular crime or punishment issue current trends and relevant statistical data for describing the extent of the issue and changes over time in addition to contemporary examples of the issue

Entrepreneurship, Technological Upgrading and Innovation Policy in Less Developed and Peripheral Regions Ivano Dileo, Manuel González-López, 2019-01-01 This special issue of the journal tries to shed light on how innovation processes occur in less developed regions by examining which factors affect these processes and how they differ substantially between the less developed and the more developed areas in Europe There are significant differences in innovation capacity among the lagging peripheral and the more developed regions Recently the downgrading of traditional manufacturing and districts based models in Europe has also highlighted the importance of enhancing relationships between the global and local regional networks of entrepreneurs and innovators The transfer of resources alone is not enough to create competitive regional economies in a global world In this regard innovation policy may be crucial in designing new paths for development and increasing innovation in peripheral regions The issue consists of six articles All of the papers focus on analyzing various aspects of the less developed and peripheral areas within a European context and look at innovation issues from different research perspectives and methods In particular four papers are related to innovation in SMEs and Smart Specialisation

Strategy innovation and the regional allocation of coordination participation in projects across EU regions innovation policy and firm absorptive capacities and innovation linkages with path development in rural areas One article is based on the relationship between family firms and the propensity to invest in innovation comparing the more and less developed macro geographical areas The final paper concerns the nexus between policy planning and the local business ecosystems innovative and competitive competence The first paper by Lukasz Arendt and Wojciech Grabowski focuses on indirectly assessing the impact of innovation policies conducted in Polish NUTS 2 regions within the framework of Regional Innovation Systems and Smart Specialisation Strategy Interestingly the authors combine firm level data with meso data in a multilevel setting and observe that Polish SMEs in less developed regions mostly depend on in house capabilities rather than on regional innovative potential to introduce different types of innovations Another observation is that Polish SMEs are more likely to innovate if they have an RD department a higher quality of labor realized investments and they use ICT Finally regional policies in these less developed regions should focus more on linking firm level factors with regional innovation systems so as to enhance companies innovation capacity The article by Pedro Varela Vázquez Manuel González López and María del Carmen Sánchez Carreira presents a consistent descriptive analysis concerning the regional allocation of coordination and participation in projects under the 6th and 7th Framework Programmes FPs as well as the funds allocated by the ongoing Horizon 2020 By comparing the 6th and 7th FPs the authors show the existence of a slight reduction in the disparities in particular due to the higher participation of regions from Spain Portugal and Italy The results show some interesting insights as it emerges that developed regions account for most of the participation in projects and funds from the FP instruments Concerning less developed regions an uneven geographical distribution of projects and funds leads to the reinforcement of pre existing industrial and innovation hubs The third paper is by Marco Pini The author investigates whether in less developed regions family businesses run by outside managers show a higher propensity to innovate investing in Industry 4.0 than those where the managers are family members This research focuses on the impact of digital innovation between the less developed Italian regions Southern and the more developed regions the Centre North The results show that in Southern Italy family businesses are more likely to invest in digital technologies when the firm is run by an external manager and spends on RD However in less developed regions RD requires new competencies and capabilities Hence innovation policies should be based on specific innovation patterns defined within individual regions not only in terms of RD incentives but also in encouraging a policy mix approach that is not entirely based on RD and technology issues The fourth paper written by Agnieszka Paliokait refers to the regional innovation paradox i.e. the low absorption capacity of public funds for innovation shown by less developed region The author has carried out an analysis of innovation policies applied to central and eastern European countries between 2007 and 2013 She finds that policies hardly promote structural changes as they mainly focus on improving the capacities of mature sectors and on adopting existing technologies In this sense the results suggest that a more tailored approach to innovation capacity building is needed taking into account the current capacity levels within the target groups. The fifth paper by Merli Reidolf and Martin Graffenberger analyses the role of local resources for firm innovation and path development in rural areas. Based on the case of Estonia they find that rural resources physical human immaterial social and community and financial have the potential to extend and upgrade regional development paths and to enrich existing paths with additional functions. However merely relying on rural resources to facilitate substantial changes in regional paths does not suffice. Finally the sixth paper which has been written by Charis Vlados and Dimos Chatzinikolaou analyses the case of business ecosystem policy from a physiological and evolutionary perspective the so called Strategy Technology and Management which represents the organic center of the produced innovation inside an socioeconomic organism. By studying the case of the Eastern Macedonia and Thrace region one of the less developed regions in Greece they present an introductory and qualitative field research. The authors outline a new possible direction for policy planning and implementation in order to expand the local business ecosystems innovative and competitive competence especially in the context of a less developed region by the usage of the ILDI Institutes of Local Development and Innovation mechanism. We would sincerely like to thank the authors for their contributions to this special issue. The articles offer us the opportunity to evaluate various facets underneath innovation issues within the context of different peripheral areas. We also thank all the reviewers for their commitment and for contributing to improving the quality and reliability of the articles. Finally our special thanks go to the Editor in Chief Prof Anna Ujwary Gil for her tireless and valuable effort in producing this journal. And lastly we hope that all of our readers around the world find these articles an inspiration to conduct more research on these topics in the future.

ICMLG2016-4th International Conference on Management, Leadership and Governance Dmitry Vasilenko and Natalia Khazieva, We Count, We Matter Christopher Steed, 2018-02-05. This book examines the meaning of Brexit the election of Trump and the rising tide of populist revolt on the right amidst the collapse of the left. Exploring the reaction against the establishment or the system the author contends that we are witnessing a new divide between those who wish to see an interconnected world and those who seek distance as transport and technology shrink the world we witness a backlash that favours protectionism and opposes immigration. Distance is the new frontier for some remote players are rejected in favour of identities closer to home. This divide plays out in relation to the notion of face as individuals react to faceless organisations and processes such as globalisation and automation responding to a sense of alienation on social media and developing a conception of themselves as networked individuals. Thus we move towards a type of society characterised not by honour and dishonour or right and wrong but by voice and choice. A fascinating and very accessible analysis of the divisions and transformations that have come to dominate the contemporary landscape this book will appeal to political leaders and social scientists with interests in globalisation social movements and social theory.

A Question of Worth Chris Steed, 2016-09-14 We live in a world that has become a resource a world conditioned by the progressive domination of a monetary scale applied across the board Our value and worth are contingent upon what we earn on what we own Amidst the increasing financialisation that characterises much of the globe the prevailing ethos is that the only values we can usefully measure are those that can be quantified and expressed in terms of economics Yet economic value and the value of the human are closely connected erode the economic and you erode the personal In the global economic crash of recent years it has been people who have been under assault not just financial value The vulnerability of a society shaped solely by economic and monetised transactions is exposed when the economy and the monetisation of everything fails When the economic machine seizes up it is people who are devalued and dumped Drawing upon his experience in government education and the Church the author asks Must we be a market society as well as a market economy Can we devise a non economic account of describing human value and worth Christopher Steed argues that the really important issues that frame the contemporary human situation are those that cannot be measured Quality is also vital to human flourishing what after all is wealth for In this timely and important work the author calls for a wider concept of value one that encompasses both economic value and human value and for a society that cultivates the importance of the human

Economic Growth and Development in the Tropics Sook Rei Tan, Haejin Jang, Jacob Wood, 2024-02-06 The living standards and scale of development around the world are vastly unequal One notable observation is that much of the poverty stricken area is located between the tropics of Cancer and Capricorn By contrast affluent nations are situated in more temperate zones Such a phenomenon gives weight to the geography hypothesis that seeks to explain the occurrence of global economic inequality by placing an emphasis on the importance of natural elements such as location and climate in determining the economic conditions of a nation This book concentrates exclusively and in depth on the key economic phenomena and factors which shape tropical economies today It examines contemporary economic problems confronting the tropical countries and provides policy recommendations that align with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals set in the 2030 Agenda It contains research works and case studies of tropical economies that are related to the area of development and environment economics The book's themes range from economic growth poverty reduction income inequality economic globalization international trade capital flow financial development and institutional development to environmental sustainability within the Tropics Recognizing the dynamism and diversity of the tropics the book encompasses empirical and policy analyses that address the key economic issues and challenges in the region so as to provide an important platform from which new policymaking initiatives can flourish This book will draw readership primarily from the fields of economics and public policy particularly under the subject areas of development and environment economics as well as discussions in the sustainability policy space

The novel begins with Richard Papen, a bright but troubled young man, arriving at Hampden College. Richard is immediately drawn to the group of students who call themselves the Classics Club. The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a exceptional and gripping novel that will keep you wondering until the very end. The novel is a cautionary tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
