Some of individuals have a problem to control their worries and feelings of anxiety what affect their life.
- Psychotic disorders, are mental disorders that cause abnormal thinking and perception. People suffer from these illnesses loss contact with reality, eg. hallucinations, delusions. - Cognitive disorders, individuals who suffer from cognitive disorders have difficulties with correctly understanding some information. These disorders affect learning, memory, perception and problem solving, eg. dementia, amnesia.

1.2. Explain the key strengths and limitations of the psychiatric classification system

Strengths: A major advantage of psychiatric classification is that inappropriate behaviours are arranged, organised and described. It allows to plan and do appropriate treatments and therapies.

Limitations: Psychiatric classification does not explain some the causes of different psychological disorders. It can lead to put individuals into the wrong classification, because they do not clearly follow by description. This can lead to a wrong decision about the treatment, so improper care.
