

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be addressed. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

These data suggest that the in vitro and in vivo experiments are complementary and that the in vivo experiments are more sensitive to the effects of the treatment. The in vitro experiments are more sensitive to the effects of the treatment on the cells themselves, while the in vivo experiments are more sensitive to the effects of the treatment on the whole organism.
