Johannesburg It investigates how women who self identify as mothers navigate their own and their families daily lives in the city in facing a variety of challenges and obstacles Methodologically the research involved studying the everyday practices and experiences of 25 mothers in the city who agreed to in depth interviews and mapping exercises The participants were a diverse group in terms of geographic location income race age and family situation The women narrated their daily lives and the routes they took through various places and spaces that made up their everyday experiences of the city They discussed their decision making around the choice of home work school shopping and recreation and detailed the social and spatial dynamics of their support networks Exploring these moral geographies of motherhood provides valuable insights into a group of people who engage the city extensively in ways that are under recognised In turn understanding the spatial negotiations that typify mothers lives exposes the depth of spatial inequality and poor urban management of our city region in new ways This Occasional Paper is the result of a partnership between the South African Research Chair in Spatial Analysis and City Planning SA CP and the GCRO and specifically involved a collaboration between researchers Yasmeen Dinath Margot Rubin and Alexandra Parker The insights presented here reflect results from a first phase of research that will be deepened through a larger study in 2018
