

Chapter 1 – Introduction to Social Psychology

What is Social Psychology

- Social psychology – science that studies influences of our situations, with special attention to how we view and affect one another
- 1) Social thinking; 2) Social influence; 3) Social relations
- E.g Nazi Germany – successful because people followed orders
 - Stanley Milgram – Asking experimenters to deliver electric shocks to people
- Social psychology reveals how social environment influences behavior

Major themes in social psychology

Social thinking:

1. We construct our social reality – we explain behaviors
2. Our social intuitions are often powerful but sometimes perilous
 - Intuitions shape fears, impressions and relationships
 - "Dual processing" – thinking, memory, and attitudes operate on two levels – one conscious, the other unconscious and automatic

Social influence:

1. Social influences shape our behavior – Matthias Mehl and James Pennebaker (2003) – social experiment – 30% of time spent talking => relationships are important; we adapt to our social context
2. Personal attitudes and dispositions also shape behavior - e.g attitudes toward smoking influence our susceptibility to peer pressures

Social relations:

1. Social behavior is biologically rooted – genes and traits allow for survival and reproduction, biological & social influences affect social behavior
2. Relating to others is a basic need – Kip Williams: when being left out, self-esteem drops; Mark Leary & Roy Baumeister: relationships with others form basis of self-esteem

Applying Social Psychology: influencing thinking and acting, how we interact with others, human health and well-being, judicial procedures etc.
