Resources in Education ,2000-10 Inventing the Built Environment Juliana Yat Shun Kei,2024-06-28 Why and how was the term built environment first introduced Inventing the Built Environment retrieves the origin of this ubiquitous term The articulation of the built environment Kei demonstrates coincided with the redefinition of education research and professional practices in architecture and town planning in 1960s Britain Concentrating on the half decade during which the term permeated the architectural and planning professions this book recalls a time when the built environment was conceived as a part of the British government's effort in national economic planning. Inventing the Built Environment unpacks the proposal for a Research Council for the Built Environment to mobilise architecture and town planning for political economy. How a relatively small group of architects, planners, politicians and researchers transposed scientific thoughts from biology, economics and computation into the built environment will be considered too. Kei highlights the assumptions about and classification of the population that were made when inventing the built environment. The architectural and biosocial implications of the making and remaking of this architectural environmental notion in Britain and beyond will be revealed through the works of pre-eminent architect-planners including Richard Llewelyn Davies and William Holford. At a time when environmental concerns again take the front seat of architectural and planning debates, this book offers for scholars and students an alternative lens to reflect on the assumptions and bias that can be embedded in our architectural lexicons.

Recontextualising Geography in Education Mary Fargher, David Mitchell, Emma Till, 2021-11-10
In this book, international geography educators discuss the ways in which geographical knowledge is recontextualised in schools and consider effective approaches to facilitate, improve and advance geography education in research and practice. It addresses key topics in recontextualising geography such as the epistemic relationships between the university discipline and the school subject, designing and evaluating the geography curriculum, the role of students in the transformation of knowledge in the classroom and selecting and transforming geographical content knowledge for the primary school curriculum. At an international level, the contributors and editors bring together an advanced collection of research and discussion surrounding the opportunities and challenges of recontextualising geography in education. The book is of interest to geography educators internationally, including academics at universities, teachers in schools and professional geographers with an interest in education.

Justice Matters Kyungsig Samuel Lee, Danjuma G. Gibson, 2022-09-29. The nine chapters in this book, along with a critical introduction, address complex theological issues relating to structural inequalities of our society exacerbated by the experience of the COVID-19 pandemic. Pastoral theology as an academic discipline is not a value-free enterprise. This book strives to speak against all forms of injustice and to advocate for those who suffer under existing structural inequalities because such a liberative and social transformative task constitutes the fundamental work of pastoral theology. Each chapter in this book analyses how private problems of individuals are occurring within the immediate world of experience with public issues historically, socially and politically. As a whole, this book addresses racial injustice, ableism, foster family care and issues faced by Christian churches during the COVID-19 pandemic. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Pastoral Theology.
