

The Great Gatsby – Chapter Summaries

Chapter One

The reader is introduced to Nick Carraway, the narrator of the book. Nick talks about his Midwestern beginnings and how he came to the New York area to work in bonds. He moves to a small house in West Egg, which is very near to Tom and Daisy Buchanan, who live on East Egg. Daisy is Nick's cousin and Tom is an acquaintance from Nick's days in college. He goes to their home for dinner one evening soon after moving. There he meets Jordan Baker, a professional athlete who is friends with Daisy. While everyone is enjoying their evening, Tom gets a private phone call. Jordan tells Nick that the person on the phone is Tom's other woman. Daisy is also aware that Tom is cheating on her, and Jordan tells Nick that almost everyone knows about Tom's affair. She also asks Nick if he has met his neighbour Gatsby. He has not and but decides that he would like to. Later in the evening Tom and Daisy ask Nick about his engagement. He tells them he is not engaged, and that it is all a gossip misunderstanding. When Nick arrives home after the party he sees Gatsby, or who he thinks is Gatsby, standing out on the grass. He intends to go introduce himself but decides against it thinking that Gatsby would prefer to be alone. So, he just watches him for a minute or two but the minute he takes his eyes off of him, Gatsby vanishes.

Chapter Two

Tom invites Nick out for an afternoon in New York. On their way to the city they pick up Myrtle, Tom's mistress. She is the wife of Wilson, a man who owns a garage along the highway. Nick mentions how lame Tom is in taking Myrtle out in public no matter who may see them. While in the city the group calls on Catherine, Myrtle's sister. They go to Catherine's apartment for a small party and Myrtle calls her friends the McKees to come over as well. Nick becomes drunk (claiming that this is only the second time he has ever been drunk) and says that his memories of that day are a little hazy. The party is mostly uneventful for Nick, but he is told some gossip about the state of Tom and Daisy's marriage. Catherine says that neither Tom nor Myrtle can stand the person they are married to and that Tom would divorce Daisy except for the fact that she is Catholic. Nick, however, knows that Daisy is not Catholic. Towards the end of the evening Tom and Myrtle get in a fight about Daisy and he strikes her, breaking her nose. After that Nick becomes incoherent due to the alcohol and the next thing he clearly remembers is waiting for a train in Pennsylvania Station.

Chapter Three

One summer evening Nick goes to Gatsby's house for the first time. He is invited by Gatsby's chauffeur and it ends up being a very large and crowded party. He knows no one at first, but sees Jordan and stays with her for the most of the evening. While he is there many guests talk about Gatsby. He is a very mysterious man to them and everyone has their speculations as to how he obtained his money. Some say he was a bootlegger, some say a spy during the war, and others think
