Exploring Consensual Leadership in Higher Education Lynne Gornall,Brychan Thomas,Lucy Sweetman,2018-07-26 Exploring Consensual Leadership in Higher Education explores the idea that the nature of academic work is both creative and consensual Higher education relationships whether between managers staff learners or the public sphere are at their most effective when rooted in partnership teamwork collaboration and collegiality The term consensual is used because it situates new leadership models as structures based on consent reflecting tacit traditions in education alongside ideas of leadership in other settings including emerging industries The aim is to celebrate achievements encourage engagement opportunities and add to the problem solving knowledge base However issues and problems in participatory engagement are also considered and the borderlines between consensus collective assent and agreement and dissensus widespread serious disagreement are examined critically The contributors offer a range of alternative perspectives on leadership reflecting the diverse forms and ways of working practised in different national higher educational contexts and cultural settings The volume incorporates a variety of approaches and points of view including stories of leadership and change innovation projects and case studies key interviews and insights and collective team writing Earle's Microcosmography, ed. by A.S. West John Earle,1897 Early Christianity in South-West Britain Elizabeth Rees,2020-03-30 This book offers a new assessment of early Christianity in south west Britain from the fourth to the tenth centuries a rich period which includes the transition from Roman to native British to Saxon models of church The book will be based on evidence from archaeological excavations early texts and recent critical scholarship and cover Wessex Devon and Cornwall In the south west Wessex provides the greatest evidence of Roman Christianity The fifth century Dorset villas of Frampton and Hinton St Mary with their complex baptistery mosaics indicate the presence of sophisticated Christian house churches The fact that these two Roman villas are only 15 miles apart suggests a network of small Christian communities in this region The author uses evidence from St Patrick s fifth century Confessions to describe how members of a villa house church lived Wessex was slowly Christianised in Gloucestershire the pagan healing sanctuary at Chedworth provides evidence of later use as a Christian baptistery at Bradford on Avon in Wiltshire a baptistery was dug into the mosaic floor of an imposing villa which may by then have been owned by a bishop In Somerset a number of recently excavated sites demonstrate the transition from a pagan temple to a Christian church Beside the pagan temple at Lamyatt later female burials suggest unusually a small monastic group of women Wells cathedral grew beside the site of a Roman villa s funeral chapel In Street a large oval enclosure indicates the probable site of a Celtic monastery Early Christian cemeteries have been excavated at Shepton Mallet and elsewhere Lundy Island off the Devon coast provides evidence of a Celtic monastery with its inscribed stones that commemorate early monks At Exeter a Saxon anthology includes numerous riddles one of which describes in detail the production of an illuminated manuscript in a south western monastery Oliver Padel s meticulous documentation of Cornish place names has demonstrated that of all the Celtic regions Cornwall has by far the highest number of dedications to a single otherwise unknown individual typically consisting of a small church and a farm by the sea These small monastic cells have hitherto received little attention as a model of church in early British Christianity and the latter part of the text focuses on various aspects of this model as lived out in coastal and in upland settlements on islands and in relation to larger Breton monasteries Study of 60 Breton sites has demonstrated possible connections between larger Breton monasteries and smaller Cornish cells
