Clark, 2022-12-06 What do we really mean when we call something graphic In American Graphic Rebecca Clark examines the graphic as a term tellingly at odds with itself On the one hand it seems to evoke the grotesque on the other hand it promises the geometrically streamlined in the form of graphs diagrams and user interfaces Clark's innovation is to ask what happens when the same moment in a work of literature is graphic in both ways at once Her answer suggests the graphic turn in contemporary literature is intimately implicated in the fraught dynamics of identification As Clark reveals this double graphic indexes the unseemliness of a lust in our current culture of information for cool epistemological mastery over the bodies of others Clark analyzes the contemporary graphic along three specific axes the ethnographic the pornographic and the infographic In each chapter Clark s explication of the double graphic reads a canonical author against literary visual and or performance works by Black and or female creators Pairing works by Edgar Allan Poe Vladimir Nabokov and Thomas Pynchon with pieces by Mat Johnson Kara Walker Fran Ross Narcissister and Teju Cole Clark tests the effects and affects of the double graphic across racialized and gendered axes of differences American Graphic forces us to face how closely and uncomfortably yoked together disgust and data have become in our increasingly graph ick world

Oxford, 1996 Refugee Women, Representation and Education Melinda McPherson, 2014-10-07

Even with increased attention to refugee women s issues in the late 20th century post colonial discourses have nurtured limiting representations of refugee women predominantly as subjects of charity and as victims Adding to a growing body of work in the field the author challenges this preconception by offering an opportunity for women s voices to shape and influence policy especially as it pertains to the role of education in the authoring of their own lives In this volume Melinda McPherson centres refugee women s voices in the educational policy debate Drawing on interviews with a group of refugee women in Melbourne she explores purposes of education and asks what kind of society these women imagine for themselves and for others Their critical reflections personal experiences and diverse backgrounds offer a contrasting picture to that privileged in ordinary policy debate The women require support resources and guidance but they are agents in their own lives who bring strength thought and imagination to crafting their own destinies in a new country Education is a pivotal tool in exercising that agency Throughout the book discussions centre on why education matters to refugee women focusing upon the integral links between education civil society and successful settlement and conversely on the negative impacts of exclusionary practices Representation and participation in education is a topic of critical social justice concern and as such the book will form important reading for academics students policy makers and community development researchers
