The Hunters of the Hills Joseph A. Altsheler, 2013-04-17 A canoe containing two boys and a man was moving slowly on one of the little lakes in the great northern wilderness of what is now the State of New York. The water a brilliant blue under skies of the same intense sapphire tint rippled away gently on either side of the prow or rose in heaps of glittering bubbles as the paddles were lifted for a new stroke. Vast masses of dense foliage in the tender green of early spring crowned the high banks of the lake on every side. The eye found no break anywhere. Only the pink or delicate red of a wild flower just bursting into bloom varied the solid expanse of emerald walls and save for the canoe and a bird of prey darting in a streak of silver for a fish the surface of the water was lone and silent. The three who used the paddles were individual and unlike none of them bearing any resemblance to the other two. The man sat in the stern. He was of middle years, built very powerfully and with muscles and sinews developed to an amazing degree. His face in childhood quite fair had been burned almost as brown as that of an Indian by long exposure. He was clothed wholly in tanned deerskin adorned with many little colored beads. A hatchet and knife were in the broad belt at his waist and a long rifle lay at his feet. His face was fine and open and he would have been noticed anywhere. But the eyes of the curious would surely have rested first upon the two youths with him.

The Hunters of the Hills Joseph Alexander Altsheler, 2015-02-24 This is a curated and comprehensive collection of the most important works covering matters related to national security, diplomacy, defense, war strategy and tactics. The collection spans centuries of thought and experience and includes the latest analysis of international threats both conventional and asymmetric. It also includes riveting first person accounts of historic battles and wars. Some of the books in this Series are reproductions of historical works preserved by some of the leading libraries in the world. As with any reproduction of a historical artifact, some of these books contain missing or blurred pages, poor pictures, errant marks, etc. We believe these books are essential to this collection and the study of war and have therefore brought them back into print despite these imperfections. We hope you enjoy the unmatched breadth and depth of this collection from the historical to the just published works.

Hunters of the Hills Joseph A. Altsheler, 1997-11 Excerpt the town Food first said the hunter We ve come a long journey on the river and we ll test the quality of the inn It was too cool for the little terrace that adjoined the Inn of the Eagle and Monsieur Berryer had a table set for them in the great dining room which had an oaken floor oaken beams and much china and glass on shelves about the walls the whole forming an apartment in which the host took a just pride It was gayer and brighter than the inns of Albany and New York and again Robert found his spirit responding to it A fire of light wood that blazed and sparkled merrily burned in a huge stone fireplace at the end of the room and its grateful warmth entered into Robert s blood He suddenly felt a great exaltation He was glad to be there He was glad that Tayoga and Willet were with him He was glad that they had encountered dangers on their journey because they had won a triumph in overcoming them and by the very act of victory they had increased their own strength and confidence His sensitive imaginative nature easily kindled to supreme efforts thrilled with the thoughts of the great deeds they might do His pleasure in the company and the atmosphere increased Everything about him made a strong appeal to good taste At the end of the room opposite the fireplace stood a vast sideboard upon which china and glass arranged in harmonious groups shone and glittered The broad shelves or niches in the walls held much cut glass which now and then threw back from many facets the ruddy light of the fire Before sitting down they had dipped their hands in a basin of white china filled with water and standing beside the door and that too had pleased Robert s fastidious taste At their table each of the three found an immaculate white napkin a large white china plate and goblet knife fork and spoon all of silver polished to the last degree Again Robert s nature responded and he looked at himself in his fine dress in

ALTSHELER,1916 The Lords of the Wild Joseph Altsheler,2014-06-08 Joseph Altsheler s French and Indian War Series consists of six volumes 1 The Hunters of the Hills This is the first volume of a series dealing with the great struggle of France and England and their colonies for dominion in North America culminating with the fall of Quebec It is largely concerned with the Iroquois the mighty league known in their own language as the Hodenosaunee for the favor of which both French and English were high bidders Altsheler notes that he consulted many authorities and was not conscious of any historical error 2 The Shadow of the North The Shadow of the North while an independent story in itself is also the second volume of the Great French and Indian War series which began with The Hunters of the Hills. All the important characters of the first romance reappear in the second 3 The Rulers of the Lakes. Young Robert Lennox and his friend Tayoga undertake a dangerous trip through the wilderness to warn Fort Refuge of the approach of hostile forces. The story concludes with the battle of Lake George. The book is set almost completely in the wilderness and provides an accurate picture of Iroquois life and warfare. The Rulers of the Lakes is a complete story but it is also the third volume of the French and Indian War Series following The Hunters of the Hills and The Shadow of the North. Robert Lennox, Tayoga Willet and all the important characters in the earlier romances reappear. 4 The Masters of the Peaks. The Masters of the Peaks is a story of the great north woods and the fourth volume of the French and Indian War Series. Tayoga Willet and all the other important characters of the earlier romances reappear. 5 The Lords of the Wild. A Story of the Old New York Border with the backdrop of the French and Indian War. The Lords of the Wild is a complete story following The Hunters of the Hills, The Shadow of the North, The Rulers of the Lakes and The Masters of the Peaks. Robert Lennox, Tayoga Willet, St Luc Tandakora and all the principal characters of the earlier volumes reappear. 6 The Sun of Quebec. The mystery in the life of Robert Lennox, the central figure in all of the romances, is solved in this sixth and closing volume of the French and Indian War Series.
