Quiz

1. Explain the difference between a mission and a vision statement, providing a key question that each should address.
2. What are the four elements typically considered within a PEST analysis, and why is this analysis important for an organisation?
3. Describe the relationship between resources, competences, and capabilities within an organisation. Provide an example to illustrate this connection.
4. Outline the purpose of setting objectives at tactical and operational levels, and how they relate to the overall strategic goals of a company.
5. Using the example of Honda's entry into the US motorcycle market, identify a key mistake they made and what strategic lesson can be learned from this experience.
6. Explain Porter's Five Forces framework and briefly describe how high bargaining power of customers can impact an industry's profitability.
7. What is a SWOT analysis, and how can information systems (IS) or information technology (IT) contribute to identifying strengths and weaknesses within this framework?
8. Describe the concept of market segmentation and provide two different bases (one for consumer markets and one for industrial markets) that can be used for this process.
9. What is the primary aim of market penetration pricing for a new product launch, and under what conditions is this strategy most effective?
10. Briefly explain Ansoff's Matrix and describe the strategic direction of 'diversification' within this framework.

Quiz Answer Key

1. A mission statement defines an organisation's current purpose – what it is for – while a vision statement describes its desired future state. A mission statement should help answer the question "What are we for?", and a vision statement should address "What do we want to achieve?" or "Where is the organisation going?".
2. PEST analysis considers Political, Economic, Social, and Technological factors in the external environment. This analysis is
