

Because students sometimes make errors on their application, colleges have procedures for verifying the reported information. The regulations include this verification as part of the FSA program requirements. The Department only requires that a portion of the FAFSA files at your school be verified, as selected by the Central Processing System. However, you also have the authority—and may be required—to verify additional students.

Verification concerns applicants for most FSA programs, but it isn't required if the student will only receive PLUS I (through a parent) or unsubsidized Stafford loans, because those loans are not based on the EFC. However, a student can't avoid verification by choosing to borrow an unsubsidized loan instead of a subsidized loan. If he tries to do this, the school is to continue with verification.

REQUIRED POLICIES

Your school must have written policies and procedures on the following verification issues:

- deadlines for students to submit documentation and consequences of the failure to meet those deadlines;
- a method of notifying students of award changes due to verification;
- required correction procedures for students; and
- standard procedures for referring overpayment cases to the Department.

Additionally, the school must give each applicant selected for verification a written statement explaining the following:

- Documents required for verification;
- Student responsibilities—including correction procedures, the deadlines for completing any actions required, and the consequences of missing the deadlines;
- Notification methods—how your school will notify a student if her award changes as a result of verification, and the time frame for such notification.

Discretion in EU Public Procurement Law Sanja Bogojevic, Xavier Groussot, Jörgen Hettne, 2019-05-30 The EU public procurement regime has recently undergone an overhaul and now allows Member States and their contracting authorities to pursue strategic goals via public procurement including environmental and social objectives The extent to which such interests may be accommodated in the procurement process is ultimately determined by the broader legal context in which the EU public procurement regime exists which raises pressing questions regarding the scope and limits of Member States discretion This volume scrutinises these new legal acts particularly Directive 2014/24/EU focusing on discretion and engaging with questions central to the public procurement regime against the EU legal backdrop including internal market law and environment law as well as law beyond the EU
