

Slaughter-Dressing of Livestock

Objectives:

- To discuss current methods of slaughter-dressing of livestock.
- To detail laws and regulations that impact on the slaughter of livestock.
- To demonstrate the various methods of stunning livestock.

Animals should be handled before slaughter with two main goals (from Dr. Temple Grandin):

- 1) Freedom from fear
- 2) Freedom from pain

Slaughter

Before slaughter, livestock should be fasted for 12-24 hours because:

- Makes evisceration easier.
- Minimizes migration of bacteria from G.I. tract into meat.

and should be given free access to water because:

- Facilitates electrical stunning.
- Provides for easier blood removal.
- Provides for easier pelt removal.
- Brightens lean color.

Humane Methods of Slaughter Act of 1978

- Extends and sets forth humane handling and stunning practices and procedures.
- Applies to all non-exempt Federal and State plants. Exception for ritualistic slaughter such as Kosher and Moslem.
- Provides standards for maintenance and condition of livestock pens, driveways, etc.
- Calls for control of the use of electrical prods (limited to under 50 volts) "unless prohibited by local inspection."
- Disabled animals cannot be dragged unless they are stunned (may be moved, not stunned, on "equipment suitable for such purpose" like a "stone boat").
- Animals must have access to water in all holding pens, and if held for more than 24 hours, must have access to feed.
- Approves use of stunning methods, which must be applied to livestock before they can be shackled, hoisted, thrown, cast or cut.

Two categories of stunning

- Recoverable
- Non-recoverable

on applications of pharmacokinetic principles to drug and chemical residue avoidance has been spread throughout literature. For the first time this handbook brings this information together in a convenient and concise volume. For easier reference text is divided into three parts: physicochemical constants and chemical structures; legal tissue tolerances and pharmacokinetic parameters derived from open literature. This is the only publication that offers all this information in a single source. For fast access numerous tables present valuable pharmacokinetic data for drugs in serum, plasma or blood and in other matrices. The authors include their own previously unpublished pharmacokinetic parameters, results of statistical analyses performed on time-concentration data tabulated in the primary sources. Helpful appendices contain FDA approved tolerances and action levels as well as chemical structures and physicochemical properties. This is an essential handbook for veterinarians, toxicologists, pharmacologists, animal scientists, food hygienists and regulatory personnel involved in human food safety.
