Classic collapse AD 750 1050 were not caused solely by climate change related droughts but by a combination of other social political and environmental factors New and senior scholars of archaeology and environmental science explore the timing and intensity of droughts and provide a nuanced understanding of socio ecological dynamics with specific reference to what makes communities resilient or vulnerable when faced with environmental change Contributors recognize the existence of four droughts that correlate with periods of demographic and political decline and identify a variety of concurrent political and social issues They argue that these primary underlying factors were exacerbated by drought conditions and ultimately led to societal transitions that were by no means uniform across various sites and subregions They also deconstruct the concept of collapse itself although the line of Maya kings ended with the Terminal Classic collapse the Maya people and their civilization survived The Great Maya Droughts in Cultural Context offers new insights into the complicated series of events that impacted the decline of Maya civilization This significant contribution to our increasingly comprehensive understanding of ancient Maya culture will be of interest to students and scholars of archaeology anthropology geography and environmental studies

Negotiating the Past in the Past Norman Yoffee, 2022-08-16 Ralph Waldo Emerson once said that all history becomes subjective that in fact properly there is no history only biography Today Emerson s observation is hardly revolutionary for archaeologists it has become conventional wisdom that the present is a battleground where interpretations of the events and meanings of the past are constantly being disputed What were the major events Whose lives did these events impact and how Who were the key players What was their legacy We know all too well that the answers to these questions can vary considerably depending on what political social or personal agenda is driving the response Despite our keen eye for discerning historical spin doctors operating today it has been only in recent years that archaeologists have begun exploring in detail how the past was used in the past itself This volume of ten original works brings critical insight to this frequently overlooked dimension of earlier societies Drawing on the concepts of identity memory and landscape the contributors show how these points of entry can lead to substantially new accounts of how people understood their lives and why things changed as they did Chapters include the archaeologies of the eastern Mediterranean including Mesopotamia Iran Greece and Rome prehistoric Greece Achaemenid and Hellenistic Armenia Athens in the Roman period Nubia and Egypt medieval South India and northern Maya Quintana Roo The contributors show how and why in each society certain versions of the past were promoted while others were aggressively forgotten for the purpose of promoting innovation gaining political advantage or creating a new group identity Commentaries by leading scholars Lynn Meskell and Jack Davis blend with newer voices to create a unique set of essays that is diverse but interrelated

exceptionally researched and novel in its perspectives
