Arthur, 2014-10-15 This book examines the influences of social class and inequality structures on migration in Africa using information from Ghana As the country achieves moderate to significant economic gains driven in part by the country's diaspora communities the desire to migrate has intensified Migration is now synonymous with social mobility and self improvement It has been found that existing class and status inequalities are analytically inseparable from the social and cultural processes underpinning the motivations behind Ghanaian migration Migrant class and socioeconomic attributes are closely intertwined reinforcing and operating at every level of the migration decision making to influence the motivation to migrate the type and form of migration the direction of the migration its timing and ultimately the outcomes and expectations that migrants associate with their decision to migrate From a historical and contemporary perspective this book argues that power and class based structural relationships are significant components in understanding how migratory diasporas shape and are shaped in turn by social class and inequality The social class identities that Ghanaian immigrants manifest in the United States are often based on immigrant formulations and importation of class dynamics from the home country These identities are then transformed in the countries of destination and replayed or relived back home thereby creating multiple class identities that are powerful forces in inducing social changes In essence migrant social class attributes formed before and post migration is significant because it holds the possibilities of transforming the social structures of migrant sending countries As migrants return home and seek reintegration into the body polity of the home society conflicts emanating from changes in their class dynamics may hinder or promote sociocultural and economic development Hence the imperative of the central government is to understand and incorporate into national development planning the social class characteristics of its citizens who are leaving as well as those who are returning
