Resources in Education ,1998 Problems of British Economic Policy, 1870-1945 Jim Tomlinson,2013-11-05 Most historical accounts of economic policy set out to describe the way in which governments have attempted to solve their economic problems and to achieve their economic objectives Jim Tomlinson however focuses on the problems themselves arguing that the way in which areas of economic policy become problems for policy makers is always problematic itself that it is never obvious and never happens naturally This approach is quite distinct from the Marxist the Keynesian or the neo classical accounts of economic policy the schools of thought which are described and criticized in the introduction Subsequent chapters use the issues of unemployment the gold standard and problems of trade and Empire to demonstrate that these competing accounts all obscure the true complexities of the process Because they adhere to simple assumptions about the role of economic theory or of vested interests previous histories have been unable adequately to explain the dramatic change after the First World War in attitudes to unemployment for instance or the decision to return to gold in 1925 Jim Tomlinson surveys the institutional circumstances the conflicting political pressures and the theories offered at the time in an attempt to discover the conditions which characterized the questions as economic problems and contributed to the choice of solutions The result is a sophisticated and intellectually compelling account of matters which have remained at the forefront of political debate since its first publication in 1981

Making the Cut David Pedulla,2022-08-09 An in depth look at how employers today perceive and evaluate job applicants with nonstandard or precarious employment histories Millions of workers today labor in nontraditional situations involving part time work temporary agency employment and skills underutilization or face the precariousness of long term unemployment To date research has largely focused on how these experiences shape workers well being rather than how hiring agents perceive and treat job applicants who have moved through these positions Shifting the focus from workers to hiring agents Making the Cut explores how key gatekeepers HR managers recruiters and talent acquisition specialists evaluate workers with nonstandard mismatched or precarious employment experience Factoring in the social groups to which workers belong such as their race and gender David Pedulla shows how workers get jobs how the hiring process unfolds who makes the cut and who does not Drawing on a field experiment examining hiring decisions in four occupational groups and in depth interviews with hiring agents in the United States Pedulla documents and unpacks three important discoveries Hiring professionals extract distinct meanings from different types of employment experiences the effects of nonstandard mismatched and precarious employment histories for workers job outcomes are not all the same and the race and gender of workers intersect with their employment histories to shape which workers get called back for jobs Indeed hiring professionals use group based stereotypes to weave divergent narratives or stratified stories about workers with similar employment experiences The result is a complex set of inequalities in the labor market Looking at bias and discrimination social exclusion in the workplace and the changing nature of work Making the Cut probes the hiring process and offers a clearer picture of the underpinnings of getting a job in the new economy

The future of Nordic labour law: Facing the challenges of changing labour relations Jenum Hotvedt, Marianne,Videbæk Munkholm, Natalie,Aradóttir Pind, Dagný,Westregård, Annamaria,2020-10-09 Available online <https://pub.norden.org/temanord2020/534> Is labour law in the Nordic countries prepared to meet future challenges or is there a need for adjustments and renewal

These questions form the backdrop for the analysis in this report. The Nordic systems of labour law are built on a binary divide between employees and the self-employed. As a main rule, employees are protected by labour law while self-employed are not, and the employer is responsible for complying with the legal framework. If future labour relations make it harder to assess whether a worker is an employee or self-employed and to decide who is the employer, this might undermine the efficiency of labour law regulations. The report analyzes the adaptability of the legal framework and points at strengths and weaknesses. Furthermore, the study discusses how the identified challenges can be addressed by suggesting avenues for legal development and reform. The report is the concluding analysis of Pillar VI in the project Future of Work Opportunities and Challenges for the Nordic Models NFoW funded by the Nordic Council of Ministers. The Journal of the Assembly

Connecting People with Jobs Improving the Provision of Active Labour Market Policies in Estonia

OECD, 2021-03-02 This report on Estonia is the seventh country study published in a series of reports looking into how policies connect people with jobs. It discusses the set up and performance of active labour market policies (ALMPs) in Estonia.

Macroeconomics James D Gwartney, Richard Stroup, 2014-05-10 Macroeconomics Private and Public Choice discusses the principle of macroeconomics particularly government expenditure, taxation, public choice theory, and labor markets. The book also covers aggregate supply, fiscal policy, inflation, unemployment, traditional Keynesian theory, low productivity, rapid inflation. The text explains international economics and comparative systems such as the export-import link, export taxes, and foreign finance. It analyzes the existence of trade barriers as being due to domestic protectionism, policies, special interest, nature of trade restrictions, and economic illiteracy. The book examines the economics of government failure, namely the collective decision-making process as being both beneficial and limited, of public sector economic action. Among the reasons cited for government failure are voter ignorance, inefficient public policy, existence of special interests, imprecise knowledge of consumer preferences, as well as government shortsightedness. The book also examines why government intervention in some activities can be beneficial, for example, weak market competition or monopoly, uninformed consumers, and when conditions of external benefits can be achieved. Economists, sociologists, professors in economics, or policy makers involved in economic and rural development will find the text valuable. Political Economics Torsten Persson, Guido

Tabellini, 2002-01-25 What determines the size and form of redistributive programs, the extent and type of public goods provision, the burden of taxation across alternative tax bases, the size of government deficits, and the stance of monetary policy during the course of business and electoral cycles? A large and rapidly growing literature in political economics attempts to answer these questions. But so far, there is little consensus on the answers and disagreement on the appropriate mode of analysis. Combining the best of three separate traditions, the theory of macroeconomic policy, public choice, and rational choice in political science, Torsten Persson and Guido Tabellini suggest a unified approach to the field. As in modern macroeconomics individual citizens behave rationally their preferences over economic outcomes inducing preferences over policy As in public choice the delegation of policy decisions to elected representatives may give rise to agency problems between voters and politicians And as in rational choice political institutions shape the procedures for setting policy and electing politicians The authors outline a common method of analysis establish several new results and identify the main outstanding problems Economic Breakthrough and Recovery Jeffrey R Cornwall, David C. Colander, 2016-09-16 This study of macroeconomics combines treatment of opposing theories with a presentation of evidence to point the way toward a reconstructed macro research and policy programme
